No Sign Of Meat Shortage Here

Judging from this picture, they haven't heard of the meat shortage around Rocky Mount, N. C. The giant ham comes from the farm of Josh Horne. It tipped the scale at sixty pounds, or three times the weight of young Sally who looks at it in complete disbelief.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Power Company employees were busy this morning installing a new traffic light at the intersection of Mercer and East Washington streets.

A display of Navy equipment in an empty store room on the Public Square was attracting quite a bit of attention from downtown visitors early this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. James Henry, Hartman street extension, reported to PA New, Tuesday afternoon, that they have corn in their garden, over five feet high and that it has ears on it.

Where the curb is low and cars park diagonally, PA New noticed pipes had been set in the sidewalks in front of the new parking meters in the diamond to prevent the parkers from over-riding the curb and striking the meter posts.

Some of the state, PA New notes, have resumed the use of two license plates, with the 1946-47 plates being used for the first time this month in many states. An Illinois automobile was noticed with both front and back plates attached.

There seems to be plenty of parking space at the postoffice since the (Continued on Page Six)

Horses Frightened By Auto; Run-a-way; Smash Into Auto

"You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink," might well be changed to—"You can scare a horse, but you can't control the damage he'll do" if you judge by a report State police gave out today.

It seems that an Amish farmer, Christie Yoder of R. D. Enon Valley, finished cutting wheat after dark last night and with his binder and team attached, was waiting beside the highway for his wife to bring a lantern to light the obstacle along the road, when Arthur Keresty, R. D. 2, Darlington, drove by in his new 19' automobile.

Keresty didn't see the binder and horses on the road and struck it, lightly, after which he proceeded over the highway some six or seven hundred feet and stopped.

The damage was slight, but the frightened horses took off after the impact at full gallop. They reached the parked car and rammed the rear of it, broke loose and went into a field where a neighbor of Yoder's stopped them.

The automobile paid for frightening those horses—$300 worth, it is estimated.

Administration Is Facing More Defeats On OPA

Senate Votes Against Price Controls On Livestock, Poultry And Eggs

FINAL SENATE VOTE MAY COME THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—The administration faced new defeats today as the senate went into its third day on the new OPA bill with leaders hoping for a final vote by tomorrow night.

An administration spokesman conceded that the senate probably would adopt an amendment of Sen. Wherry (R) Nebr., barring resumption of controls on milk and milk products in the event OPA is revived.

The prediction was made in the wake of a resounding 49 to 26 vote by which the senate went on record as favoring no controls on livestock, poultry and eggs should the price control act be restored. This proposal also was sponsored by Wherry.

No Predictions On Truman Action. Senate Majority Leader Barkley, in the face of the administration defeat on the meat amendment, refused to make any prediction as to (Continued on Page Seven)

Gaston Post To Buy Ambulance For Rescue Work

Post Starts Negotiations For Surplus Ambulance From War Department

NAME DELEGATES TO STATE MEETING

Members of the Perry L. Gaston post, American Legion, took action at their meeting in the Legion home, Tuesday evening, to purchase a surplus war ambulance for use of the New Castle fire department rescue squad, when it was brought out that the present ambulance, used by the rescue squad was virtually worn out, and of little further use.

The rescue squad has a lot of valuable equipment for use in rescue work, but without a vehicle which can be depended upon to take them to the scene of a tragedy, this is of little use.

Negotiations will be entered into at once for the purchase of a serviceable ambulance from the government surplus, and this will be donated to the city for use in rescue work, and for transporting needy veterans to hospitals, etc.

Tractor Accident Injures Farmer

Glenn Studebaker, 43 years, of R. D. 3, Slippery Rock, is confined in the New Castle hospital, with chest and back injuries suffered in an accident, when his tractor overturned on his farm, Tuesday afternoon.

According to Studebaker, a portion of his farm was at one time a coal mine, and since has been re-filled, with the exception of a 10-foot hole. In some manner Studebaker was not able to avoid the hole while in the process of mowing hay, and the accident occurred.

Plenty Of Meat But Few Buyers

PITTSBURGH, July 10.—(INS)—The old law of supply and demand is working in Pittsburgh.

Merchants said they expected the prices to level off soon.

Senate Probers Prepare To Hear Dr. H. M. Garsson

Kingpin Official Of 'Paper Empire' To Be Asked About War Contracts

CONGRESSMAN MAY DECLINE TO TESTIFY

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—The Mead committee hoped to hear today Dr. Henry M. Garsson's own account of how a "paper empire" of 16 interlocking firms in which he was a kingpin official won 78 million dollars in government war contracts.

Senate investigators sped up testimony in an effort to put Garsson on the stand after hearing a Garsson publicity representative accuse the committee of "anti-semitic prejudice" in its inquiry. Chairman Mead (D-N.Y.) denied this accusation by Henry Paynter, Washington public relations man, and declared that for anyone to hide behind such a charge would be a "cowardly act."

To Question Royall. Before proceeding with Garsson the committee planned questioning of Undersecretary of War Kenneth Royall, who participated in framing an order last year "freezing" government payments to one of the Illinois companies.

Paynter appeared after Secretary of War Patterson testified that Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky.), house military committee chairman, intervened with him three times in behalf of the Garsson industries. May has admitted that he was the Kentucky agent for the Cumberland Lumber Co., a Garsson firm.

No Home Yet For Tragedy Victims

No offers of an apartment or a house for the Bishop or Shimko families had been received at noon today, and the mothers of the two little tots who were crippled by a moving machine accident, Sandra Bishop and Stephen Shimko, Jr., are still in quest of a place.

The two women, mother and daughter, have been living in the Leslie hotel awaiting the time when they could get possession of a home they purchased. The families were divided up. Sandra and Stephen being sent out to a farm for a time. While playing in a field they got in front of a moving machine and were so badly injured that each had a leg amputated above the ankle.

When the children are discharged from the hospital they must have a home place. Anyone with a suitable apartment or house to rent has been asked to call the Leslie hotel, 1850.

What Are Russians Doing And Why? Puzzles Europe

(Editor's Note:—The following dispatch from J. C. Oestreicher, International News Service foreign editor, who is making a tour of Europe with a group of American journalists gives a first-hand picture of postwar conditions in Austria and Europe.)

By J. C. OESTREICHER (U.S. Foreign Editor)
VIENNA, July 10.—Here in Vienna—last outpost of western democracy in Europe—the whole cavalcade of a fortnight's exploration of European wreckage, indecision and confusion may be easily summarized in a single phrase.
What is Russia up to?
Any layman arriving on the continent this hysteria-troubled summer is overwhelmed from the first moment of setting foot on German, Austrian or Balkan soil with the monotonous yet fervent question "just what are the Russians doing and why?"

Big Four Turn To German And Austrian Issues

Rules For Procedure At July 29 Peace Parley Also Being Debated

MANY PROBLEMS BEFORE DELEGATES

PARIS, July 10.—(INS)—Big Four foreign ministers probed German and Austrian problems today and debated rules of procedure they will offer the July 29 general peace conference.

Germany was first on the agenda, and returned the statesmen to dangerous ground.

The same topic yesterday led Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov to accuse Britain and the U. S. of failure to effect economic and political demilitarization of the Reich.

Critiques Byrnes' Proposal. Molotov criticized also Secretary of State Byrnes' proposed 25-year plan to keep Germany disarmed, and insisted on ten billion dollars in reparations for damage inflicted on Russia by the Nazis.

The council of foreign ministers hopes to adjourn its current session within a few days, but now feels it may have to meet again to complete draft treaties before the 21-nation get-together.

Observers in Paris are convinced the ministers will press for smooth sailing at that general conference to insure a Sept. 23 meeting of the United Nations' general assembly in New York.

That date was recommended to U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie as one that would coincide with the probable end of the Paris conference.

France, as host nation, will have the honor of first holding the chair. (Continued on Page Two)

Two Of Bandits Wounded By Police In Pursuit Following Holdup

NEW YORK, July 10.—(INS)—Three gunmen shot and killed a patron of a crowded bar and grill at Broadway and 47th street today and two of the bandits were shot down and captured by pursuing officers. A policeman and a civilian who came to the aid of the cops also were wounded in the gun battle.

Sol Moss, 35, of the Bronx, was killed when he attempted to halt the three hold-up men from robbing the Mayfair bar and grill just across the street from the Palace theater. Moss was a customer in the bar.

Moss was identified by police as business agent for a national ladies garment workers union local.

Eye-Witness Tells Of Plane Disaster

(The following eyewitness account of the crash of a converted B-17 bomber near Holyoke, Mass., was told to International News Service by Robert Hodash, a rescue worker.)

By ROBERT HODASH As Told to International News Service

HOLYOKE, Mass., July 10.—The wreckage area covered about 300 yards down the mountain side, starting at a spot not more than 150 feet from the very top of Mt. Tom. With only a slight lift the big ship would have cleared the peak.

Bits of the plane—very small bits—were the first thing I saw as we struggled up the mountain, guided by the burning flare of the wreckage and the woodlands. A little nearer, I saw an arm and after a few steps more I slipped and fell. I had fallen onto a smashed body and I was sick to my stomach.

Mass of Bodies. It was horrible. Further on we found a mass of bodies—there were (Continued on Page Two)

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—The spare tire, a wartime casualty, may be restored to new automobiles this fall.

Civilian Production Administrator John Small said rubber production estimates are such that it may be possible to equip new cars with a fifth tire in the fourth quarter of 1946.

However, he said said automobiles turned out during the current quarter will have only four tires.

Huge Water Spout Expected In Next Bikini Bomb Test

By FRANK B. ALLEN (U.S. Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD USS MT. MCKINLEY, Bikini, July 10.—Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy said today that the forthcoming shallow water atomic bomb detonation will hurl target ships into the air in a huge water spout.

Blandy predicted that small fragments of the target vessels may be blasted nearly two miles into the air above Bikini lagoon when the A-bomb explodes.

Huge Column To Rise. The admiral said: "Experts believe that a column of water 2,000 to 2,500 feet in diameter will rise to an estimated 8,000 to 10,000 feet. Ships in the target center will rise with the column—perhaps in fragments."

Blandy said that Commander Roger Revelle, University of California oceanographer, estimated that a million tons of water will be shot upward in "test-bomb" tentatively scheduled for July 25.

The admiral pointed out that the water which falls back into the lagoon will be tainted with radioactivity and that he expected to allow only a radiological patrol to re-enter the lagoon on the same day as the blast.

In the July 10 overhead test, Blandy's flagships, the Mt. McKinley and other large vessels entered the lagoon within a few hours of the burst.

Names of the victims, several of them known to be ranking Army and Navy officers, were obtained by Western Field officers from Goose Bay, Newfoundland, where the big ship had taken off several hours earlier. Public announcement of the identities will not be made until the next of kin have been notified.

The Fortress struck the highest peak in this area at 10:39 last night with a flaming explosion which was seen by 1500 persons attending a carnival at the mountain's base. The explosion was heard five miles away in downtown Holyoke. The ship was slightly off its course and eight miles northeast of its intended destination at the Army's West-over Field, Chicopee.

Wreckage Widely Scattered. The wreckage was scattered over two acres. The largest pieces left of the plane, officers said, were a six-foot section of one wing and a piece of one of the engines.

Army officers said the bodies were so badly mangled and burned that individual identification would be difficult.

Trees were set ablaze by flaming wreckage scattered over a radius of several hundred feet by the impact. (Continued on Page Seven)

Coroner Probes Gaffney Death

Inquiry Held Into Circumstances Surrounding Fatal Automobile Collision

INQUEST HELD IN MANTZ'S OFFICE

Dr. T. F. Nugent, county coroner, conducted an inquest in the office of Alderman J. C. Mantz of the Fourth ward Tuesday afternoon into the circumstances surrounding the death of John Clyde Gaffney of 419 Knox avenue, who expired in the Jameson Memorial hospital at 3:02 a. m. on June 22 as a result of injuries sustained in a collision on Route 422, about three miles west of the city.

After hearing the testimony offered, the jury was unable to determine that there had been negligence shown by either driver, and brought in an open verdict, that young Gaffney, a veteran of World War Two, died of injuries as a result of the collision between his car and that of S-Sgt. Dean Marshall of Ellwood City.

Plane Crashes Into Mountain In New England

Homeward Bound Service And Civilian Personnel Die In Tragic Mishap

PLANE AFLAME AFTER CRASHING (BULLETIN)

HOLYOKE, Mass., July 10.—(INS)—Twenty five homeward bound service and civilian personnel were counted dead today in the crash of a converted army B-17 plane into the rocky side of 1200-foot Mount Tom.

The plane, which burst into flames, was transformed into a huge bonfire which burned fiercely for hours despite a heavy rainfall.

Army officials at Westover field, to which the ill-fated plane was bound from Newfoundland, said that the death toll included 14 Navy men, 6 army and 5 civilians.

Army workers and volunteers segregated the victims in New England's worst air disaster. Final identification will be difficult.

Delay Naming Victims. Names of the victims, several of them known to be ranking Army and Navy officers, were obtained by Western Field officers from Goose Bay, Newfoundland, where the big ship had taken off several hours earlier. ### New Government For Italy Is Now Near Formation

ROME, July 10.—(INS)—Italian Premier Alcide De Gasperi neared formation of a new government today with all major parties agreed on economic policies and determined not to sign a "humiliating peace treaty."

Agreement with Socialists and Communists on wage issues virtually ended the government crisis.

De Gasperi hopes to form a government in which his own Christian Democratic party, Communists and Socialists will cooperate.

The wage agreement left the question of future increases up to various workers' syndicates.

406,000 Homes Started In 1946

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Housing construction has hit its highest rate since the record building boom of 1925, National Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt reported.

Some 406,000 dwellings of all types have been started this year, or 34 percent of President Truman's 1946 goal of 1,200,000 homes for veterans, Wyatt's first formal report revealed.

"We have finished the steepest part of the long uphill climb to reach our goal of starting 2,700,000 houses and apartments by the end of 1947," he declared. "The fact that we have gone this far quickly shows that we can reach our goal."

However, the whole low-cost phase of the drive is "seriously threatened," Wyatt said, by the precarious state of price control. The new home ceilings of the National Housing Administration remain, but cannot be held if building materials go sky high.

Of the total new homes started, private industry came through with the "unusually good" showing of 268,000 conventional, or traditional, houses and apartments, said the report on the first five months of the year.

The rest were conversions, temporary public housing, housing-type trailers, and a few prefabricated dwellings. Wyatt called the building record, "the biggest upsurge in history, after years of low production."

"The dollar value of housing under construction so far in 1946 amounts to $1,087,000,000 already in less than half the year, more than the entire 1945 total of $850,000,000," the report stated.

Because of shortages in materials and strikes in the steel, coal and lumber industries, Wyatt reported, the emergency housing drive is "just hitting its stride." He said the likelihood is strong for starting the rest of the 1,200,000 scheduled for 1946.

He cautioned against complacency in reading these production figures, pointing out that "starts" are not houses.

Other nations will then officiate in alphabetical order.

Molotov's attack on Byrnes' plan for Germany was followed by a Soviet proposal that a substitute pact of 40 years' duration be drawn. This was immediately accepted by the secretary of state.

But Molotov continued to attack the western powers, particularly in regard to their policies in German occupation zones.

He branded the action of American Lieut. Gen. Lucius Clay in suspending reparations shipments to the Russian zone as an "unlawful act."

Byrnes answered this charge by declaring that Clay, deputy commander in the European theatre, was prompted in his action by the fact that Russia failed to respect the Potsdam promise that Germany should be treated as an economic whole.

Molotov then accused the western powers of failure to carry out land reform in Germany; of not carrying out the reparations program; and of not demilitarizing the western zone.

He suggested the Big Four draft a plan for stricter economic disarmament of Germany.

Thefts From Cars Reported To Police

Pocketbooks And Rifle Reported Stolen From Automobiles Here During Past Few Days

Three cases of thefts from local automobiles have been reported to city police, who are investigating, Chief of Police Robert D. Hanna stated today.

Mrs. Carl Fye, of 2363 Highland avenue; and Miss Hammond, of R. D. 5, reported that while they were swimming at Cascade Park pool, Tuesday evening, about 9:15 p. m., someone broke the ventilator window in the Fye car, and stole two pocketbooks. There was $3 in Mrs. Fye's pocketbook, but no money in Miss Hammond's.

Norman E. Vanhorn of 209 Bluff street, reported that his billfold and cards were taken from the glove compartment of his car, which was parked along Neshaunock Narrows, while he was swimming just above Rual avenue. A watch and other articles was not touched.

H. M. Thompson, of 122 Richelleu avenue, reported that a 22 calibre Winchester rifle, valued at $50 was taken from his car between 12 and 6 p. m. Saturday, either while it was parked near his place of business, the F. W. Walker Co., at 426 Croton avenue, or from in rear of the El Patio restaurant. It had telescope sights on it, he stated.

SENATE PROBES PREPARE TO HEAR DR. H. M. GARSSON

so far has ignored an "open invitation" to testify under oath at a public hearing.

Stormy Session

Paynter turned the hearing into a stormy session when he flatly refused to answer many questions relating to his contacts with May in the past week. The witness contended it would "breach a professional confidence."

Under questioning, however, he denied that he had "helped" prepare the house speech May delivered Monday. At that time, May charged there was "something sinister" behind the testimony attacking him.

Paynter said he was hired last week by Wayne Johnson, New York attorney for the Garsson interests, for $2,500—$500 of which he has already received. But he confessed he was "not quite sure" who he was working for.

Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., asked if Paynter had talked with May last Saturday. Paynter said he had not. Ferguson asked about Sunday. The witness replied:

"I'm not sure whether it was Congressman May or not."

Ferguson demanded to know whether the former newspaperman had visited May's room in a Washington hotel last Friday. Paynter reported:

"I'll freeze in hell before I betray my confidence."

Paynter charged that the committee has "been plotting against these people for a year." He said he was "proud of a telegram he sent a Washington newspaper publisher on July 4 in which he accused the Mee committee staff of 'Gestapo' methods and 'persecution' of the Garsson enterprises."

Principal companies in the maze of firms under investigation are Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., Elgin, Ill.; Batavia Metal Products, Inc., Batavia, Ill.; and Interstate Machinery Co., Chicago.

REPORT SIGNS HAWAIIAN VOLCANO MAY ERUPT

there is nothing but the seared and pock-marked barren mountainsides looking like enlargements of fantastic pictures of the moon.

Sitting in the plexiglass nose of this seventh AAF B-17 as it swoops low into the crater, altogether too much like having a volcano in your lap.

Persistent reports have circulated that Mauna Loa is about to erupt, and the sulphurous smoke coming up through the hot cracks in the crater floor support the rumors that Old Pele is about to rumble and spew her hot lava down the mountainsides as she does every few years. The broad rivers of crusty, cinderous lava down the slopes of the rugged mountain show clearly where the molten rock seared a path during her last rampage about seven years ago.

Experts On Hand

Roy H. Finch, volcanologist at Hawaii National Park, and Dr. Thomas Jaggar, retired volcanologist and one of the foremost authorities on the subject in the world, are on hand to record any eruptions. Their instruments are ready to list every move of the anticipated cataclysm—provided the molten rock doesn't boil up and engulf their observatory, perched on the lip of Old Pele's yawning mouth.

Considerable heat is rising from the crater today, and the change in temperature caused this huge plain to rock and pitch when we reached the area directly above the smoking crater. There is no visible flame, but the heat and the smoking area, which is several hundred yards in extent, indicate the huge volcano may be about to burst its seams.

Everyone in Hawaii is watching the skies above Mauna Loa for the pillar of fire that will signal the eruption, and every ear is tuned for the rumble and earthquakes that accompany the more violent explosions within the mountain.

The old Hawaiians still revere Pele, and take her slightest manifestation seriously—every smoke signal that she sends at this moment sending up in defiance of this huge plain above her favorite crater.

WHAT ARE RUSSIANS DOING AND WHY? PUZZLES EUROPE

infiltrate by devious means the American, British and French zones of occupation throughout Europe.

The whole problem hinges on the possibility that such penetration might conceivably encourage Moscow to transform proselytization into aggression; in other words, to emulate the bankrupt example of Hitlerism.

Highest circles are convinced that so long as the western allies are strong enough militarily, politically and economically to face any Russian showdown with vigorous sanctions in one form or another, the Communist tide can be held in check.

Elections Significant

This is especially emphasized by the fact that in every free election in Germany and Austria, the American zones returned a paltry minority for Communist candidates.

Yet it would be blinking at facts to attempt to say that American authorities are complacent.

The exact contrary is the case, from topmost echelons on down. Worst factor of the whole problem is the obvious inability to understand Soviet obstructionist tactics, which is paradoxical in view of the fact that when the Russians make commitments they almost invariably abide by them.

The recent order to expel 54 thousand Germans from Vienna therefore floored the Americans and British, and perhaps the French.

It is obvious at this moment that only stern American protests resulted in a stay of execution of the order—a delay that is regarded as only temporary at best.

Highly informed circles are hopeful—even convinced—that the Soviets contain no aggressive plans. But their policies of division, confusion and secrecy have resulted inevitably in solid cloudbank of apprehension blanketing all Europe from the Rhine to the Vistula.

EYE WITNESS TELLS OF PLANE DISASTER

about eight or 10 all splattered against the mountainside. Most of the clothing had been torn from the bodies. Shoes, caps and overcoats covered the ground all around.

The biggest single piece of wreckage was part of one motor. It was melted and about a third of the motor's usual size.

It wasn't long before army men and more volunteers began to creep up the mountain. The army was able to get Jeeps up the roadbed of a now abandoned railway that used to run to the mountain top.

The police came too. Work was started at once in beating out the rest of the flames and getting the bodies on litters. A soaking rain is said to have prevented the fire from spreading all the way down the mountain.

Many Are Crying

Many of the litter bearers were young army fellows. Most all of them were sick, but they stuck to their terrible job. Some of them were crying. The cops cried too and it seemed perfectly natural to cry. It was easy when hardened policemen were doing the same thing.

After the Jeeps, the army got an ambulance up the mountain along the old cable car path despite an 18 degree slant. We had taken this same path. Don't ask me how we got there. I lost a shoe and cut my hands and feet on the rocks and in the underbrush. All the way we were guided by the red glare of flames which were weird and scary as they beckoned to us from the fog high up on old Mt. Tom.

At the top of the mountain, there is a rock flat plateau—not very large—and the plane had smashed full into the mountainside only 150 feet below. Just to think. One good roar of the motors and a good lift and that flying fort and its human cargo would have been safe.

believe that waves 100 feet in height will sweep from the blast center. Average predictions estimate waves at the blast centers at 70 feet.

It is believed that the waves will diminish quickly and be no more than five to ten feet high when they hit Bikini atoll.

It was disclosed that observer ships will be grouped closer to the Mt. McKinley than they were in the July 1 test. The McKinley will be stationed again at a point 10 to 11 miles from the lagoon.

Experts explained that the radioactive cloud arising from the shallow water burst is not expected to exceed a height of 20,000 feet and that observer ships will be in little danger.

Plans, however, call for evacuation of Eniwetok atoll, 190 miles west of Bikini.

Blandy predicted that high waves caused by the atomic blast will damage ships of the guinea pig fleet. He said that large vessels could ride out such waves if they were under way but that at anchor some of them may be torn from their moorings and run aground.

that they were en route to Ellwood City from Mt. Clemens, Mich., where the former is stationed, having left there about 5 o'clock in the evening.

Tried To Pass Truck

Around 1:55 a. m., as they neared the city, having passed Parkersburg, Coroner Marshall stated, that he attempted to pass a red semi-trailer truck, and had gotten about half the distance around the truck, when he saw the car driven by Gaffney suddenly appear as if from nowhere. He and his wife stated that it seemed to come from in front of the truck. He swerved sharply to the left to avoid a collision and struck Gaffney's car, almost head-on. Mrs. Marshall told the same story.

Donald Klingensmith, of 1024 Croton avenue, who was in the car of Gaffney, stated that they had started for Youngstown, after getting gas at a station at the foot of the Youngstown Hill. He said the night was clear and they had a clear vision of the road. He stated that he had never seen any trailer truck on the highway, as testified to by Marshall and his wife. Gaffney's car, he stated, was a 1929 model Ford, and was going but 35 miles an hour. He stated they passed other cars but no truck. He was unable to state just where the collision took place, but knew that they were on the right side of the road.

Henry L. McCall Jr. of 237 West Grant street, who was with Gaffney and Klingensmith, stated that he had attended a dance that evening, and fell asleep, and did not know anything about the collision until he woke up in the hospital.

Roll Back That Death Rate

It is significant that more than half of the grim holiday death toll resulted from traffic accidents, while roughly a fourth were drownings. These are the great killers of the summer holidays, and if the huge annual accident losses are to be curbed in any measurable degree it must be on the highways and in bathing areas that the giant's share of the reform work is done.

Fortunately, the actual death toll of the long Fourth of July weekend fell far short of predictions. It is difficult to tell as yet just why this was so. It is to be hoped the figures indicate that the sharp upward trend of accident statistics has reversed itself, that the American public is at last aware of the urgency of a realistic safety program.

More probably, however, the seemingly low totals are low only by comparison with fears of safety workers who, noting the alarming upward movement for the first half of 1946, overestimated the probabilities for the holidays.

In any case, the fact that dire warnings were not completely fulfilled is no cause for relaxing the safety program.

Hundreds died on the highways over the week-end, and other hundreds drowned or met death through miscellaneous accidental causes. Such deaths were needless and would not have occurred in most cases if simple rules of safety had been observed. The job now is to confound the fears of the pessimists and really roll back the death tide with safety measures that get results.

Sale Of Surpluses

An emphasis on speed is beginning to appear in the activities of the War Assets Administration. In May the sale of surplus properties totaled $233,000,000 and if objectives of the WAA are met, monthly sales at original cost values soon will be boosted to $1,500,000,000, which would bring to the treasury probably $400,000,000 at surplus prices. This speedup is being accomplished through more "site sales," whereby purchases may be made where the goods are located.

Although there has been a rather general demand for the government to reduce its towering stockpiles of supplies as quickly as possible, there is an inherent obligation on the part of the WAA to conduct these sales in a manner which will cause the least disruption of normal commercial activities. Release of some supplies, such as building materials, may serve as a bottleneck breaker in a housing situation which has made this land of plenty in reality a land of untenable, unnecessary and scandalous scarcity.

Other commercial fields, however, do not look upon this release of huge surpluses with fond expectation. The drug industry, for one, could suffer considerably by hasty and unwise freeing of government stores of medicines, although to date most of these drugs have gone into channels—relief projects abroad, new foreign markets, etc.—that have not greatly affected the manufacturers.

Up to the end of May property originally costing the government—which is to say the taxpayers—$17,000,000,000 had been declared salable surplus and at that time approximately 20 per cent of it had been sold. In the disposal of the remainder of the goods, it is perhaps inevitable that private interests will suffer in some instances. But it is the duty of the government to see that such dislocations are held to a minimum.

Birds Of The Sea

Ornithologists in England protested the royal navy's announced intention of blowing up the German island fortress of Helgoland. Migratory birds, they say, will suffer. A senior naval officer replied with this statement, "I can only assure them that when we have finished it will be the most wonderful bird sanctuary—nothing but a pile of rocks."

Helgoland was a German fleet and submarine lair for 50 years. According to the treaty of Versailles, the kaiser's naval base there was to be destroyed, and the Germans submitted a solemn report to the Allied authorities soon afterward that the demilitarization had duly taken place.

Somewhere in the years between the two world wars those fortifications reappeared and no one seemed to know how nor care much. But the world soon identified the migratory birds that issued forth from the island in Hitler's war as submarines and raiding planes and ships—dark buzzards of prey.

Now this refuge for the scavengers of the sea is to be destroyed. On the rocks that jut out of the cold waters of the North Sea, marking where Helgoland once existed, birds of peace will alight and take rest. They will be able to hatch their young from nests unfouled by a German war brood.

Weather Experts

Probably there is no limit to the number of jobs available but the federal government reports that private weather forecasters are being employed by concerns.

Branches of American industry are demanding a special type of meteorology, and special training along their lines has opened a new field of opportunity.

It is pointed out that the operators of air traffic lines prefer to depend on their own trained experts to guide them in conducting their service trips.

The moving picture industry needs special reports on light intensity and other factors which enter into the production of films in their business.

Perhaps if you are adept in the juggling of atmosphere conditions, in a way that will make money for some concern or keep it from losing money, a job waits for you.

When the moon comes over the mountain there's often a revenue man in close pursuit.

Man loves change, declares a speaker. If it is accompanied by a wad of big bills, that is.

If you're one of the movie fans who want lots of action, just take a seat next to the aisle.

We're told there will be no bathing suit shortage this year. Judging from those we've seen, there already is.

House and Senate have agreed to reduce the national debt limit. But it will take a lot more effort than that to start reducing the debt.

WASHINGTON CALLING

by MARQUIS CHILDS

Economic Constitution

Needed By America

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Almost unnoticed in the flow of the news was the appointment by Congress of a joint committee under the full employment law. This at least is a beginning even though President Truman has not yet found the right man willing to serve on the council of economic advisers provided under the law.

On the joint committee are some of the ablest men in the House and Senate. It includes Senators La Follette, Taft and Murdock and Representatives Patman, Bender, Judd and Outland. These are serious-minded members of Congress, acutely aware of the political and economic forces on the loose today.

Likely chairman of this committee is Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, since he sponsored the legislation in the Senate. That is the most hopeful portent of all. For the past 12 years, ever since he's been in the Senate, Wyoming's Joe O'Mahoney has been talking in his friendly, intensely earnest way about the realities of the world we live in.

He is convinced that even though it was watered down before it was passed, the full employment bill can be an important instrument to keep our economy on a fairly even keel. Nearly two months ago O'Mahoney made a speech in the Senate that, unlike most Senate speeches, has had wide echoes. Even the Senate's official reporter, whose ears are beaten down by the daily flood of oratory, came up to O'Mahoney afterward to say he thought it was a remarkable speech.

Conflicts Can Destroy Us

It was a warning to America that our confusions and conflicts can destroy us. O'Mahoney pointed to a parallel between the troubled times in which we live and the uncertainty and confusion that prevailed when the founders of this nation were trying to draft a charter of government.

"What America needs at this moment," O'Mahoney said, "is an economic constitution just as 160 years ago, it needed a political constitution. The present situation has come about through perfectly natural forces which could not be resisted. Because of the progress which has been made by science and invention, our economy has ceased to be an individual structure and has become a structure of great organization."

O'Mahoney was chairman of the temporary national economic committee. That committee created by Congress took a long look at what had happened to this country in the past 50 years. The monumental report completed in 1941 showed the ever increasing concentration of economic power in a few corporations.

Had Unmistakable Meaning

In O'Mahoney's clear and fair appraisal this had an unmistakable meaning. It meant that if we continue to have a democracy, then big government would grow bigger in an effort to control business. The one tried the other as sure as night follows day. And O'Mahoney believes passionately that both big business and big government are destructive to true democracy.

Since the end of the war he has written and talked about this a great deal. He is one of the few men in public life who has faced up to the fact that in a boom-to-bust cycle we may wake up against a showdown for which we are totally unprepared. Senator O'Mahoney wrote about these things recently in Dun's Review, a business magazine, and the response from businessmen surprised him. Many said they realized the jeopardy to freedom in concentration and monopoly.

"The drift toward big government," O'Mahoney wrote, "did not begin with business and outgrowth of the jurisdiction of little and local government."

Federal Incorporation Remedy

O'Mahoney's remedy is a law providing for federal incorporation of the giant corporations that stretch across the nation and the world, making mockery of the state laws under which they are incorporated. This would end the fiction that these "collectivist units," as O'Mahoney calls them, are private persons.

Such a law, O'Mahoney's opinion, would lead not to more government regulations but to less. The responsibilities of corporations under federal law would be clearly defined. Their sovereign power would be subject to the sovereign power of the United States.

Now if only President Truman could find able men to serve on the council of economic advisers, he could work closely with the congressional joint committee. There would be co-operation in checking disastrous economic cycles. And the evidence is mounting that we are going to need that kind of co-operation very soon now.

GRANDMA'S COUGH

Grandma may have had a cough for years. She may call it bronchitis or phthisis or asthma.

A young person had such a cough there would be something about it. There might be some suspicion of tuberculosis.

On account of grandma's age and the length of time she has had the cough, no one thinks of tuberculosis. Something a chronic cough in an elderly person is due to tuberculosis. The safe way is to have a careful examination made.

Free examinations and tests are available for those who need them. By following up all chronic coughs and "colds" we may eventually get tuberculosis under some kind of control.

A pretty girl walked into a New York hotel lobby, called "hello" to her boy friend and 2,000 men straightened their neckties and answered "hello"—then she knew the Elks were in town.

The brother Elks are holding their annual convention and it's a most unusual session for these times. They don't seem to be very angry at anybody.

That's unique in mass meeting territory.

I met a fellow yesterday who told me he had to leave a "support something" meeting early the night before to rush over to a "down with something" meeting.

I said "Do you usually take in two meetings a night?" He said "Well it's summer. There aren't so many now."

In my home town the biggest mass meeting ever held was to discuss mosquito elimination. The mosquitoes attended in a body and eliminated the meeting.

After that we went back to slapping 'em down individually. It was not as exciting as mass action but it was satisfactory.

Anyhow it's nice to have the Elks around. They have big teeth but they never sink them in your neck.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

Before you read the following I want to make it clear that the opinions expressed therein are not mine but those of Detective George (Bloodhound) Lamb of the New York District Attorney's office, given in a recent interview with a reporter.

However, since "Bloodhound's" job is the pursuit and arrest of errant husbands who have skipped and abandoned their wives and children, what he says ought to be of some importance.

Lamb speaks not as a philosopher, but as a cop, and sometimes I think that a cop's experience is pretty good practical philosophy, particularly when enforced by handcuffs and a pistol.

Altogether, in his thirty years in the department, he has brought more than 1900 husbands back to their families via the City Jail and on the way back from California, Texas, New Mexico and the 14 other states, most of his charges have told their tales of woe to him.

Why do husbands leave home? There are many reasons, says "bloodhound" Lamb.

Working wives, too many kids too quickly, and marriages of people without mutual interests, are among the most frequent ones.

When a woman is working she assumes too much of the responsibility the man ought to have. Lamb says, so he has less to do and goes gadding.

And a woman who has been out all day comes home tired and cranky and can't do her housework and then the arguing and the fighting start—and pretty soon the fellow gets tired of it and runs away.

"It isn't good to have too many children one right after the other," says our authority on matrimony. "The responsibility is too great."

From Me To You

By MESEEEALL

Surely no one is complaining about the weather being too cool... not even at night. Of course there are folks who are sleeping under woollen blankets now... take the group out along the various streams... but they do have other things beside heat to bother with.

DeLace Cole of amateur theatrical and not so amateur insurance sales fame was planning one day last week on taking a trip out to the so-called wide open spaces near Neshannock Falls to visit his old time side-kick Lew "Always Again" Pearsall when they met on our main street and stopped to chat about the situation. Some things were being said, mainly one topic about rigging up his 40 foot sail boat, erig Lewis. He was told on a Sunday afternoon to entertain friends who visit his wife. On week days he uses it for visiting Rotarians... well Lewis wanted some rope so he asked DeLace if he would run over to the A&P and buy some and bring it out when he came. D. C. said, "Why I can't do that old chum, that's a chain store."

So you see that there is more than the heat to bother about. In the country you have the cows, the bees and the bugs... and in town you have me. Life is wonderful and the sooner we can throw off our war nerves the better we all will be. It takes time but it won't be long until we can all laugh and for a few moments each day forget our consternations.

That reminds us of the poor auto dealer. For years he didn't have a car to sell... he didn't complain too much... but then peace came and autos were again on the production line. Low and behold one morning he found one sitting on his showroom floor. What to do... who shall receive this beautiful piece of metal... with defroster, heater, radio, dual horns, fender pants, five mirrors, seat covers and five tires. He worked hard on that problem, folks around guessed who would be the lucky one... but no one guessed the dealer's bridge playing pal. The deal was made... the dealer so worn out he left for unknown places to fish... Yes, it will be great when the salesman can again sell.

The World and the Mud Puddles

OUR ASSETS AND LIABILITIES.

Intelligent business men find it profitable to take periodical inventories of their assets and liabilities and to make their findings the basis of an attempt to maintain a proper balance between the two. What is good for private business ought to be good for the nation. It is a good time right now for an honest audit and an honest comparison of our national strengths and weaknesses. What is good about America? What is bad? How can the good be magnified and the bad minimized?

On the assets side of the sheet, we have far more than any other nation past or present. Indeed, less fortunate peoples must be amazed that any country so richly blessed could ever harbor uncertainty or discontent.

As a foundation, we have in our Constitution the most nearly perfect charter of government ever devised by man. It is the only document which modifies majority rule with full recognition of the rights of minorities. It is the only governmental plan which definitely limits the power of the State over the individual. It is the only basic law which in actual practice has guaranteed freedom of conscience and freedom of speech.

Along with this magnificent Constitution we possess incalculable natural resources and raw materials and are probably the only nation on earth which can exist independently of any other nation. We have developed industrial capacities beyond the comprehension of other peoples, bringing the highest standard of living ever achieved in any country in the world's history. We stand at the top in agricultural production. We have the best transportation and communication systems ever devised. We have the highest standards of popular education and lead in cultural learning, science and sanitation. We excel in health and life expectancy. We lead the world in air, naval and land power. We possess the most potent military weapon ever devised by science. We have no worries of empire, no enmities toward any other people.

On the other side of the balance sheet there are some liabilities to be seriously weighed. We are beset by persistent effort on the part of groups and individuals to violate both the letter and the spirit of our Constitution. We witness the attempts of certain ones in high places to sow the seeds of class conflict. We note the pressure for special privileges by some elements of the people at the expense of all the other elements. We observe a growing tendency of majorities to ignore the rights of minorities, and minorities to ignore the rights of majorities. We are the perpetual victims of alien-minded cliques to replace the traditional American way of life with the fantastic philosophies that breed dictatorship. We carry the most colossal burden of debt ever laid upon the shoulders of any nation in history and struggle under the highest taxes ever imposed in our career as a nation. We find government trading favors for political support. We find a wavering, constantly hesitant foreign policy bringing the threat of serious international complications. We feel the debilitating effect of policies and promulgations which have impaired the self-reliance and independence of the people and made thrift and industry outmoded. We find ourselves slowly but surely drifting into a condition where we are substituting a government of men for a government of laws. We see labor, industry, agriculture harassed by overlords who are neither elected by nor responsible to the people.

Our assets are tremendous—all most incalculable. But they are offset all too dangerously with liabilities of which we are failed to take proper accounting.

THE WRITER OF THE WORLD AND THE MUD PUDDLES will present a series of stories concerning the Constitution, beginning tomorrow. Read them on the Editorial page.

The State Police Say:

An erroneous and dangerous belief by many motorists is that they are protected against a blow-out if they have had their tires recapped. Recapping provides a wearing surface and prevents punctures, but does not add strength to the sidewalls. If the sidewalls blow out, usually the car is thrown out of control.

Meat Famine Slated To End In Fortnight
Price Stabilization To Break Bottleneck
Government Revamping Bill Doomed

(Special to Central Press)

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Government officials are saying that the meat famine in the United States will be over within a couple of weeks. This is a good bet because by that time the OPA battle in Congress should be history and the meat industry, farmers and all concerned will know where they stand on prices.

Agricultural Secretary Anderson has expressed the belief that pricing has been a large factor in the bottleneck of steaks, chops and roasts. Anderson said he believes that you can't expect industry to sell products at a lower price today when there are expectations of price rises tomorrow.

Most Washington observers blame the price factor, its uncertainty and its teeter-tottering for the meat shortage. They point out that there are now more beef cattle in the U. S. than ever before in the nation's history. Reason for a lack of meat at retail levels, they point out, is that there has been small inducement to move live animals to market.

Housewives, who have been unable to buy meat in their local markets, can look forward soon to government officials say—to better days. The potential meat supply is there and can move to butcher shops through packing centers and wholesale outlets when economic difficulties are ironed out.

President Truman probably is not to blame, but someone at the White House "got his wires crossed" when the chief executive wrote to Capitol Hill recommending a new Army-Navy merger plan.

The letters from the president went to the chairmen of the House and Senate military and naval affairs committees.

What may prove to be embarrassing later to the president is that he neglected to send a letter to the chairman of the House committee which is handling merger legislation.

This is the House committee on executive expenditures, of which Rep. Carter Manasco (D- of Alabama, is chairman. The White House mistakenly thought the House military affairs committee was handling the merger bill and sent its chairman, Rep. Andrew J. May (D) of Kentucky, a letter instead.

Mansack said that was all right with him. He was not miffed by the oversight.

"I read the letter in the papers," he said. "Anyway, we are not going to do anything about the merger until the Senate has acted."

Congress is rapidly getting legislation in shape for adjournment around July 20.

Most major legislation is already out of the way. This includes the OPA extension and appropriation measures.

Within a few days many bills will have been disposed of about the only big measures remaining will be the $2,700,000,000 British loan and atomic energy control bills. Democratic leaders predict that the British loan will be approved by the House without great trouble. They want to get the atomic energy bill through the House as it passed the Senate. The odds are that they will.

The House does not pass bills approved by the expenditure committee respecting President Truman's three reorganization plans. The Senate may follow suit, so the chances are that the president's first efforts at revamping the federal structure will come to nothing.

One thing that will have to be settled, either before adjournment or after the November elections, is the old-age pension payroll tax. Unless Congress acts, the tax will jump from one per cent on employers and employees to two and one-half per cent Jan. 1. The House ways and means committee is at work on legislation to boost the levy to one and one-half per cent on Jan. 1.

Children differ widely in the speed of early development of speech. The average child has a vocabulary of a few hundred words at the age of two. Some, however, after using a few words much earlier, seem to make no speech gains for many more months. It is at two and a half or three years your child does not talk, have his hearing tested and consult a speech specialist.

Some children slow of speech have a good sign-language which serves their purpose. Then, too, an occasional child develops speech slowly because his parents hamper him with too much urging. Don't press your child to talk. Let him alone.

Few Words

As he first shows interest in names of things, you should often say the name as, cat, doll, dress rather than "This is a cat," and so on. The fewer words he must attend to at such times, the better. Begin very early to talk to the infant and continue to do so, about what you are doing for him and with him. Never engage in baby talk. Also, sing lullabies to him and say a few nursery rhymes to him over and over again. Begin to read to him as soon as he will look at a picture for a few moments at a stretch. While he looks at the picture.

Sen. Taft Predicts Rent Control To Soon Be Restored

Says Rent Control To Return By August 1 Despite Fate Of
OPA Legislation

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—Sen. Taft (R-O.), predicted in the senate today that government rent controls will be restored by congress before Aug. 1 regardless of what action is taken to revive the OPA.

Taft's assurance that rent controls will be re-instituted came as the senate neared a vote on a "key" amendment to the pending OPA revival bill which would bar imposition of controls on meat and poultry. The OPA measure would restore all rent and price controls for another year, until June 30, 1947.

Taft said he was confident that, if necessary, the house and senate will adopt a resolution restoring rent controls in effect June 30, when they terminated along with other price controls.

Taft made the statement in reply to "many complaints" which he stated he had received because of "threatened" rent increase, most of which, he noted, will not go into effect until Aug. 1. He pointed out that many states require a 30-day notice from landlords prior to any rent increase.

Taft said if no action is taken by congress to revive price controls, he was confident that the senate banking and currency committee, of which he is an influential member, will report out a rent control resolution sponsored by Senator Byrd (D-Va.).

COST HER NYLONS

AURORA, Ill., July 10.—An Aurora woman's desire for steak cost her three pairs of new-nylons—and she had no steak.

She hung the nylons on the backyard line while she hurried to the meat market. But there was no steak.

When she returned, her stockings were gone.

Enforce Weight And Light Laws

HARRISBURG, July 10.—Details of Pennsylvania State Police, enforcing motor vehicle weight and light regulations on the highway, were active during the month of May, 1946, according to a report from State Police headquarters at Harrisburg.

In this period, 18,289 cars were checked and 4,461 warnings were issued to operators, requiring them to correct faulty lighting equipment or other safety devices. The law requires that the faults be corrected within 48 hours, except when condition of the equipment is such that it immediately effects safe operation, when the automobile may not be operated until corrections have been made.

State Legion To Meet August 21

Philadelphia To Be Scene Of Gathering; To Urge Acceleration
Of Housing

HARRISBURG, July 10.—(INS)—State American Legion Commander James P. Murray, of Forest City, said today that resolutions urging acceleration of the veterans housing program would highlight the annual convention, opening Aug. 21 at Philadelphia.

Murray explained that federal housing and state bonus proposals have been the most important submitted by posts.

An estimated 3,500 delegates were expected to attend the first postwar convention which will continue for four days.

Resolutions calling for additional aid for disabled servicemen were expected to be presented for consideration by delegates.

A memorial service for Pennsylvania men and women killed during World War II was slated to highlight the sessions. Harry Calmery, of Kansas, a past national commander, will deliver an address honoring war dead.

Convention delegates will be asked to endorse the candidacy of Paul H. Griffith, of Uniontown, for national commander of the American Legion for 1947, Murray said.

State Travel Film Premiere In Philadelphia

'Cradle Of Liberty' Makes Theater
Debut Tonight In Philadelphia House

HARRISBURG, July 10.—"Cradle of Liberty," the Pennsylvania technicolor travelogue motion picture made in the Keystone state last summer by Twentieth Century Fox Films Incorporated in cooperation with the State Department of Commerce, will have its premiere in the Fox Theatre, Philadelphia tonight.

Showing with it will be the feature picture "Centennial Summer," made by the same company, a story of the centennial in Philadelphia in 1876.

For the most part these two films will be shown together in practically every town and city in the state, 75 of the towns being included in the schedule the first week following the premiere in Philadelphia and the balance within several months, according to the department's vacation and recreation bureau.

Another Film

Another technicolor Pennsylvania travelogue by the same company, which is expected to be titled "Summer Trails in Pennsylvania" will be distributed for showing within the next several months. Altogether these two travelogues are expected to be shown in approximately 7,300 theatres throughout the country to a potential audience of approximately 90,000,000 persons.

Governor Edward Martin has issued a statement endorsing "Cradle of Liberty" which had a preview in a Harrisburg theatre several weeks ago.

Both these films were made at the request of the State Department of Commerce and the department's vacation and recreation bureau director, J. Herbert Walker, spent considerable time with the directors and cameramen on a tour of the state last summer when the filming was done.

Probe Of Used-Car Dealings Scheduled For Pittsburgh Soon

HARRISBURG, July 9.—(INS)—A sub-committee of the joint state government commission investigating "sharp practices" of used car dealers today scheduled a hearing at Pittsburgh July 24.

House Majority Leader Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, of Lehigh, chairman, said the hearing would be held at 10 a. m. in the city-county building at Pittsburgh.

"Any person who believes he has a legitimate complaint against any finance company or automobile dealer on account of any practice used when the automobile he purchased was financed is invited to appear before this committee in connection with the deal in order that any nefarious practices may be exposed to public view," Lichtenwalter said.

"The mauling of returning veterans and the public generally, through exorbitant and unconscionable finance charges must be halted," he emphasized.

1946 Gypsy Moth Drive Completed

HARRISBURG, July 10.—Exceeding their goal by more than 22,000 acres, the Pennsylvania and United States Departments of Agriculture today completed the 1946 DDT spraying program in the 15-year battle to drive the destructive gypsy moth out of Pennsylvania.

According to Dr. Thomas L. Guyton, director of the state bureau of plant industry, five airplanes, three high-velocity blowers, and ground spray crews with knapsack sprayers and power machines, beginning April 1 completed the treatment of 54,200 acres in the Lackawanna-Luzerne county area where the pest has been confined since its discovery in 1932. A goal of 32,000 acres had been set at the beginning of the season.

The airplanes covered 39,442 acres of forest land in the area infested with caterpillars of the gypsy moth, Dr. Guyton reported. The plover accounted for 13,692 acres along highways and in towns. Knapsack sprayers covered 1,038 acres and portable machines were used to spray 22 acres.

The largest single grant, $292,000 went to the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry for continued research into the effect of drugs in treatment of infantile spastic paralysis and other forms of neuro-muscular disorders. The money is to be spent over a five-year period.

Claims Turned Down By Government In Elgin, Ill., Plant

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—Government officials disclosed today that they disallowed five and a half million dollars in "excessive" profits claimed by the Erie Basin Metal Products Co., now under senate investigation.

The officials also turned thumbs down on $19,213 in expenses for "liquor and miscellaneous gifts" asked by the same firm.

George Knutson of the War Price Adjustment Board told the Mead committee that the five and a half million dollar refund was demanded by the government on a total of 39 million dollars in war contracts subject to renegotiation.

George Knutson of the Price Adjustment Board testified that of the three, and a half million dollars a $1,270,000 "refund to the treasury" for 1943 has not yet been paid.

Profit figures on the Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., of Elgin, Ill.,

were given as the senate committee awaited scheduled testimony by Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

Russia Brands Hoover's Survey As Propaganda

MOSCOW, July 10. — (INS) — Russia accused the United States and Britain today of using food as a political weapon and branded former President Hoover's recent food survey as "unconcealed anti-Democratic, anti-Communist, anti-Soviet propaganda."

An article appearing in Izvestia, official government publication, declared:

"Progressive circles abroad see in the food policy of the reactionary groups in the United States and Britain a means of political black-mail, comparable to atomic energy in another sphere."

Izvestia cited the reported interruption of UNRRA supplies to White Russia and the Ukraine and continued aid to Greece as instances of this policy. It continued:

"Britain and the United States are masters for the distribution of food supplies throughout the world, and the International Good Council is nothing but a facade."

"The UNRRA is entirely dependent on this control. The United States and Britain exert direct control over UNRRA when it comes to determining relief policy."

"Traveling as a personal representative of (President) Truman, Hoover with the aid of a remarkable publicity service used his tour for unconcealed anti-Democratic, anti-Communist, anti-Soviet propaganda."

PA NEW OBSERVES

new meters went in. The new meters, of which there are eight in front and six on the side, have a 12-minute limit, costing the parker one cent. With the limit on time, the person who wants to run in and mail a letter can do so without double parking.

One motorist, evidently an out of town, was parked in a peculiar fashion on East Washington street near Mercer street, this morning. Instead of parking parallel with the curb he was parked triangular wise, with the rear of the car protruding into the carway. Perhaps, he thought he was still in his own home town where they park in that fashion.

Lawn sprinklers were in full operation on Tuesday evening, Pa. New noted around the city. Younger boys and girls were taking full advantage of the situation by dashing in and out of the resulting spray.

According to reports, most of the picnic spots of this area are booked to capacity for weeks ahead with would be picnickers and reunion fans. One grounds superintendent is even booking up for the 1947 season, so the repeaters will be assured of accommodations for the next year.

Many homes around the city are being freshened up with a new coat of paint, Pa. New notes. The number of residences painted this spring and summer will probably make a new record for the city during a corresponding period of former years, it is indicated.

Pennsylvania commercial vegetable growers this year will produce more than 50 million ears of sweet corn for market if records of recent years are maintained.

Austria Declines To Negotiate With Moscow

Austrian Parliament Defeats Communist Proposal To Negotiate Direct With Soviet

VIENNA, July 10. — (INS) — The Austrian parliament, meeting in extraordinary session to debate the Russians' reparations seizure orders, defeated today a Communist proposal to open direct negotiations with Moscow.

Only affirmative votes were cast by four Communist members.

The Russians ordered confiscation of German-owned industry, and vital oilfields several days ago as reparations.

Debate on the subject opened shortly after the Austrian government press agency announced the Soviet command's reversal of its order for deportation of all Volksdeutsche from the Russian zone would be clarified later in the day.

Chancellor Leopold Figl presented the government viewpoint, defining German assets only as those in possession of the Germans in 1938 or brought in by the Germans since that time. This conforms to the view of the United States, Britain and France.

Defeat of the Communist proposal was taken to indicate that an overwhelming vote in support of the government could be expected.

Socialist Stadtrat Leader Spieser, in voicing his party's support of the government, pointed out that German-confiscated property which had belonged to Jews now was listed as German property.

Ernst Fischer, Communist leader, continued the line followed by his party's publications. This is that seizure was ordered as a result of the Austrian government failure to negotiate with the Russians on a 50-50 basis, and proposed nationalization of industries.

Widows outnumber widowers in the U. S. two to one.

U. S. Occupation Troops May Stay For Many Years

PARIS, July 10.—(INS)—American occupation troops are likely to remain in Germany a long time if Russia persists in pursuing the policy enunciated by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to the Big Four conference.

This was the reaction in American delegation circles today to Molotov's attack on the American-proposed 25-year disarmament treaty for Germany.

The hopes of United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that the 25-year security pact would lead to the shortening of the Allied occupation period were dashed by Molotov's blunt notice that Russia wants Germany occupied until "democratization" is completed.

Wants 40 Years

Molotov argued also that the treaty period is too short, that it should be for 40 years.

One high ranking member of the American delegation pointed out that the occupation could be prolonged forever by the "democratization" issue in view of the different conceptions of democracy already existing between Russia and the west.

He added that from the way things have been going politically in the Russian zone of Germany the Soviet government may decide that democracy can be accomplished only when the Communists control the entire country.

He pointed out also that so long as the Soviet forces occupy the Russian zone the western Allies are bound to continue occupying their zones.

Molotov's demand that the security pact should be a more general agreement covering political and economic disarmament as well as military is considered the main stumbling block to any quick agreement on Byrnes treaty proposal even if he could accept the recommendation to extend it to 40 years.

AROUND CITY HALL

Council met Wednesday with the architects who are planning the new city building to check over the initial designs of the building. The city hall will be located at the corner of Jefferson and Grant streets.

Building permits were issued to Peter N. Wright on Tuesday for the remodeling of a two-story frame house at 11 West Home street at a cost of $100 and to H. L. Reynolds today for the remodeling of a two-story frame house at 909 Adams street at a cost of $150.

City Assessor George Patterson is exceptionally busy making assessments on new buildings and homes being constructed throughout the city, and on remodeled homes.

Two new pumps for the sewage disposal plant, which were ordered over a year ago, will arrive within the next few days, according to City Engineer John Z. Street. The engineer received a call from Trenton, N. J., saying that the pumps have been shipped. Instead of having to halt operations and bypass sewage into the river when the water is high, the plant will be able to operate continuously with the new pumps, no matter what the height of the water is.

Butler Bus Strike Is Still Unsettled

BUTLER, Pa., July 10.—Possibility that Butler's 49-day-old bus strike will continue into the fall was indicated today by a labor spokesman, who declared that settlement would not come for at least 45 days. It was understood that the striking bus drivers now are signing for their $20 a week unemployment compensation.

Mayor W. C. Campbell met with a labor negotiating committee and it was decided that State Senator J. W. Carr would contact the head of the Public Utilities Commission in Harrisburg to arrange a meeting there between the PUC officials and a committee, including the mayor from Butler.

Officials of the Butler Motor Transit Company have offered the bus drivers a 10-cent an hour increase, which would bring the wage to 85 cents an hour. Union officials said they would be willing to recommend that the workers go back to work for a 15-cent raise.

Spatz Comments Injured Hughes

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(INS)—Gen. Carl Spatz, commanding general of the U. S. army air forces today sent a message to Howard Hughes, who is recovering from injuries suffered in a plane crash Sunday, wishing him a speedy recovery.

Gen. Spatz commended Hughes as a "pioneer" of the aviation industry's development whose services to the AAF have been "invaluable". A special communications center Hughes is staying to handle the flood of messages and queries about the injured flyer.

PLANE CRASHES INTO MOUNTAIN IN NEW ENGLAND

part of the crash. A resultant forest fire was averted only by a down-pour of rain that immediately followed. Mangled bodies were flung over a wide area.

Holyoke police and firemen, working throughout the night, at 5 a. m. had removed nine bodies to the Mount Holyoke amusement park, a mile away. More than a thousand merry-makers who had witnessed the spectacular crash rushed to the scene.

Army investigators said visibility was cut down by haze at the time of the crash. A light rain was falling.

Cause Of Crash Unknown

Working parties reached the wreckage over a steep footpath, a mile from the nearest roadway. They found several bodies mangled beyond recognition and severed arms and legs scattered by the impact, one victim's leg landing in a tree.

The wreckage was so complete immediate cause of the accident may never be known.

The bomber was a stripped model, devoid of armament and without regular seats for passengers.

Authorities have been unable to determine if any of the victims were women and said they were awaiting a report from Dr. Arthur Kinney, medical examiner.

The scene of the crash near the top of Mount Tom is eight miles northeast of Westover Field, Chichester.

The only road up the rugged side of the mountain was the old roadbed of an abandoned cable car, unused since the Mount Tom summit house was closed years ago.

Crash Last Night

Many jeeps and heavy military trucks slid off the road bed as they struggled to reach the top and most members of the rescue party made their way to the scene of the crash on foot.

The crash occurred at 10:20 o'clock last night. The first members of the rescue party reached the scene at 1:30 a. m. today. The delay was caused by the difficult terrain.

Westover Field officers said the crash was the worst they have ever seen. They said wreckage was strewn over two acres.

Officers denied reports that the converted bomber was on fire before it crashed. They said markings on the mountain side showed it crashed and rolled over and burst into flames. The crash was followed by an explosion as the flames reached the fuel tanks.

Field ambulances made their way to the scene near the top of the mountain today and started the difficult operation of evacuating the bodies down the mountainside.

ture talk about it from the book; read. Keep on reading to him several times a day, quelling each time as soon as his interest lags. My selected list of books to read to the baby and young child may be had in a stamped envelope.

Always answer the child's questions kindly and as accurately as you can. Never make him feel a question by him is bad, foolish or annoying to you. Though he ask the same question repeatedly from time to time, answer it just the same, even though you are sure he knows the answer.

Often, such questioning is prompted by his desire to talk and hear you talk. In some extreme instances, however, you should dwell at length on the answer or even ask him kindly to tell you what you answered him before you entertain another question. But this is very different from telling him "not to ask so many questions."

If you wish to read further on these matters, write me enclosing a stamped envelope for my bulletin, "The Young Child's Speech," addressing me at 235 East 45th street, New York, N. Y.

Wilbur Whiting, New Castle Ruler; Arthur Carpenter At New York Convention

Wilbur A. Whiting, exalted ruler of the New Castle Elks lodge, and Arthur H. Carpenter, past exalted ruler, attended the installation of Charles E. Broughton as Grand Exalted Ruler of the B. P. O. Elks at the national convention of the order in New York City Tuesday.

CHARLES E. BROUGHTON
Grand Exalted Ruler of B. P. O. Elks

Broughton, newspaper editor and publisher of Sheboygan, Wisconsin, was unanimously elected to head the order at the first full convention of the Elks since Pearl Harbor.

The new ruler succeeds Wade H. Kepner of Wheeling, West Virginia, as leader of more than 800,000 Elks carrying on their activities in more than 1500 lodges in all the 48 states and American territorial possessions.

The new ruler has been a member of the order for 43 years and had previously served as chairman of the board of grand trustees.

The convention drew some 10,000 delegates to New York from far-flung lodges across the country.

ADMINISTRATION IS FACING MORE DEFEATS ON OPA

the reception it would receive at the White House if it remains in the bill which is sent to President Truman.

Earlier, however, he informed the senate that he felt the president would sign the bill if the measure, which restores price controls until June 30, 1947, is enacted "without substantial mutilations."

Although the senate adopted the meat and milk amendments, administration spokesmen felt that there was a chance that the house or a conference committee would refuse to accept them.

That was the situation which prevailed when the senate earlier adopted an amendment to the subsequently vetoed OPA bill which would have ended price controls on livestock, meat, poultry and dairy products last June 30. The house refused to agree to the amendment and the conferees struck it out.

Other Decontrols Likely

Although there appeared likelihood that the senate would write other decontrol amendments into the bill, Barkley was optimistic over the chances of defeating the price control formula of Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, which the president had termed "most objectionable."

Both the Taft and Barkley amendments give higher prices to the manufacturing industry, but the Barkley proposal permits the OPA considerable leeway in deciding what they shall be.

The threat of a filibuster by Sen. O'Daniel (D) Tex., still hung over the senate as Barkley pressed for a final vote tomorrow. The Texan made it clear that he planned to use every delaying device possible to postpone final action.

As part of his tactics, O'Daniel offered an amendment to the OPA bill, the highly controversial bill of Sen. Chavez (D) N. Mex., creating a fair employment practice commission. Barkley said an attempt would be made to table it.

Both the barometer and the thermometer were developed in the 17th century.

Better Chow For Troops Is Aim

Universities To Aid Army In Providing Troops With "Chow de Luxe"

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—The war department, with the aid of four universities, today launched a broad scientific program to provide troops with "chow de luxe."

As a result of the program, army cooks will be backed up by personnel schooled in bacteriology, nutrition, bio-chemistry, physics, electrical and chemical engineering, zoology, psychology, biology and statistical analysis.

The department's action meets in part recommendations made recently to Secretary of War Patterson for improvement of army food service.

Improvements Suggested

Suggested improvements were made by a committee of food specialists headed by John L. Hennessy of Hotel Statler Co. Inc., who primarily called for establishment of a food service corps, declaring that the plan would improve physical and health standards of all American citizens.

The universities where 30 graduate students and reserve corps officers will be trained in the scientific problems involved in the research and development of food products and containers used by the army are:

Chicago university, Northwestern university, Illinois Institute of Technology and Iowa university.

These institutions were chosen because of their proximity to the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces at Chicago, Ill. The educational program was labeled the "Chicago Plan."

Salvation Army Girls Attending Camp At Ellwood

New Lieutenant Arrives At Local Headquarters Today; Will Serve Here

Thirteen New Castle girls, members of the Salvation Army Sunbeams, are leaving today for the newly-dedicated Salvation Army camp near Ellwood City. The boys who have been at the camp are coming home today, and the girls will remain until July 20. Ten local band members will then leave for their vacation which follows the girls' week at the camp.

Replacing Lt. Mary Verner as Captain Thelma Dunder's assistant, Lt. Cathryn Gowdy of Marietta, O., will arrive to take up her duties at the New Castle headquarters on Jefferson street this afternoon. She will be entertained this evening by the youth group who are having a wienner roast on the headquarters lawn.

Instead of meeting in the evening this week, the women of the Home League will meet in the cool of the morning Thursday for a picnic breakfast on the lawn.

Stifling Heat Causes Recess In Jap Trials

TOKYO, July 10.—(INS)—The international war crimes tribunal recessed today until Monday to allow time for installation of air-conditioning equipment in the court room.

Stifling heat, typical of Japan's rainy season, noticeably shortened frayed tempers and Chairman Sir William Webb decided to call a recess so that the court room can be made more comfortable.

Before calling the recess, Webb told a defense attorney that the far eastern tribunal was not going to slavishly follow the precedent set at Nuremberg.

The chairman's remark came as an answer to Attorney John Logan of New York City, who had asked permission to read excerpts from certain documents and referred for precedent to the European tribunal.

After turning down the defense request, Webb added: "We pay the greatest respect to the Nuremberg decision."

Prosecution attorneys spent the morning in introducing documents relating to Japan's aggression in Manchuria.

HEAT WAVE BREAK NOT YET IN SIGHT

PITTSBURGH, July 10.—You might as well get used to the hot weather—Weather Forecaster John J. Murphy sees no real relief from the current heat wave before Friday.

The mercury is expected to climb to 90 again today after dropping only to 68 through the night. Yesterday it stopped at 89 downtown and 88 at the airport, three degrees below the season's highs at both points registered on Monday.

Mr. Murray said scattered thunder showers such as are predicted for tonight again will bring only temporary relief.

Young Members Arrive At Camp On Slippery Rock Creek: Assigned To Cabins

Sixty-nine young members of the central branch of the Y.M.C.A. ranging in age from eight to twelve years, arrived at Camp Fred L. Rentz Monday to officially launch the 1946 camping season of the association.

Many of the boys this year are making their first trip to the site along the banks of the Slippery Rock, and after a busy day the group was entertained at a campfire session, with James Dart in the role of story-teller.

Following the interesting tale by Assistant Director Dart, the boys filled the air with a number of rousing songs and then had their devotions. Following this tap were sounded by Jim Hamilton and Tom Hares and the boys retired to their cabins.

Outmoded Building Codes Are Attacked

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Department of Commerce today attacked "outmoded building codes" and their "restrictive provisions."

The department complained that prohibitions against new and improved building methods "are retarding construction of housing and are contributing substantially to higher building costs."

Modernization and standardization of building codes would reduce construction costs, according to the department's construction division.

The construction division is conducting a survey, the result of which will be turned over to municipalities with the hope that it will aid them in revamping present codes.

IN THE OPEN

Somebody must have tipped off those bass that I was on the prowl. Even the kingfisher gave me the laugh in his cackling chuckle when he came across me standing there knee-deep in one of his favorite pools. The water was just cloudy enough to be "right" for good fishing; the skies were not too clear and there was little or no breeze. The only drawback was that the bass would not cooperate. In fact I did not even see a fish that looked like a bass all during the afternoon.

I started out with the thought in mind of trying for a trout or two. These plans were changed enroute upon learning that road conditions were bad in the objective area and I drove to the secluded stream which is reputed to offer good small mouth bass sport. The valley through which this sizable creek finds its way out to the river was in the early days one of the main travel routes through the frontier country. Close by this stream stood a widely-known stockade where the pioneers gathered during Indian uprisings.

Free From Pollution

The creek itself is free from mine waste or other pollution, and flows in limpid beauty across the riffles and through the long flats. When in flood this stream is no respecter of persons, bridges or anything else that may stand in its path, but normally it is a meandering, well-behaved waterway. I stopped by a bridge and changed to clothing suitable for stream work. Beneath this bridge a deep pool looked quite promising, but I could see no fish. On a sand bar in the shallows thousands of shiners had schooled, sparkling the bar with intermittent silvery flashes as they turned lazily in the slow current.

I walked upstream a short distance and went in at a heavy rifle with the scoop seine in the hope of picking up a few hellgrammites. Every stone in the creek seemed to harbor a crayfish, but the hellgrammites were apparently all away on vacation. After several fruitless tries I picked up a dozen or so crayfish for want of anything better. A spotted sandpiper came by while I was busy turning rocks in the riffles. The bird watched me nervously for a moment and then disappeared through the tangled branches of a wind-fallen sycamore.

Used Crab Tail Bait

Falling back on the small boy's favorite chub lure, I baited with a crab tail and dunked this tidbit into the pool at the bridge. A few little minnows showed some interest but for several minutes there was no other action. Then a small feeding fish broke water at the head of the pool and I tossed the bait in at the swirl. Almost immediately a fish took hold and I pulled out a shiner, not five inches long.

Some fifty yards below the bridge the stream works into another good pool, large enough to hold several bass. I waded down to this spot, planned to fish, suddenly he smashed into the water and came up with a small shiner in his bill. I moved into the same pool and cast the crab tail into the dead water against the far bank. The only thing that bit was a mosquito, who took a healthy bite out of my neck. After several dozen casts I finally picked up a weak strike and a short run. I carelessly missed this fish by striking against the slack line belled out by the current. On the following cast the fish took hold again and proved to be a "horny" chub.

Bass On Hunger Strike

Apparently the bass were on a hunger strike for the afternoon. I drove upstream another mile or so, planning to kill time till the evening fishing. In the pools by the pier of a washed-out bridge I came across several lads from a nearby summer camp. They had scored no fish but one youngster had killed a very large snake along the roadway. It was quite a heavy reptile, easily five feet in length, and had recently swallowed a mouse or rat. From the size and coloration I would say it was a chicken snake, although I am not too certain of this identification.

Orange milkweed flamed in exotic beauty by the roadside, while its common cousin, the purple milkweed, was already snaring a few hapless bees and beetles in its sticky blossoms. Raspberries were still not fully ripe.

During the late evening I made another try for the bass, fishing carefully over the same water that had defeated me in the afternoon. The pools were still unproductive. After more than an hour's steady angling had not produced a single strike, I called it a day. Several giant bullfrogs in a marsh near the stream were chorusing, "skunked again, once again," as I drove away in the twilight.

U. S. Gave 4,200 Ships To Allies Under Lend-Lease

England Got 3,390 And Russia 575 To Aid In Recent War On Enemy

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The United States transferred more than 4,200 naval vessels to other nations under lend-lease during the war.

They ranged from tiny torpedo boats to escort carriers.

Official government figures released today show that of the total, 3,390 naval vessels were lend-leased to Great Britain, Russia, a trailing second, received 575 vessels.

Other countries receiving naval ships from the U. S. were France, China, Netherlands, Brazil, Mexico, and other Central and South American nations.

Major vessels transferred to England included 37 carrier escorts, 78 destroyer escorts, 392 landing craft (infantry), and nine submarines.

Large units transferred to Russia included the 7,500-ton cruiser Milwaukee, three ice breakers, 88 submarine chasers and a large number of smaller auxiliary craft.

Britain has returned 949 of the naval vessels to the U. S. Russia, on the other hand, has kept all ships transferred to her in the hope they can be retained to build up the Soviet Union's naval power.

The U. S. has not asked for any of the ships since under lend-lease terms none was to be returned until six months after the emergency ended.

Circulation Of White Pennies Growing Smaller

Coins Issued In 1943 Are Still Circulating But In Smaller Quantities

White pennies!!! The plague of the shopper, since 1943.

Maybe you think the white one-cent piece that has caused you embarrassment, is something new. As far back as the Civil War there were white pennies, only then they were made of nickel and silver, instead of steel coated with zinc as the last one was.

Our present nuisance coin was, as we all know, was a war product. The white cent may have been, as one coin collector suggested, a product of the keen minds in the war department, for it made us more war conscious than any one thing. Zinc or steel pennies (as you prefer) were issued in only one year—1943. There are not many in circulation for no more are being issued, although there may be a few more around due to a theft.

It seems that a man in our rural district had a bank on his dresser and every time he had a white cent piece, he dropped it in the bank to keep from mistaking it for a dime. One day, a short time ago, a thief broke into his house and relieved him of his burden of white pennies, thus putting them back in circulation.

Maybe you have also wondered about the silver dollar that preceded the large paper bill. They were first issued about the year 1793. Although used extensively in the west, there are only a few seen here. One bank official said that they have a few shipped in occasionally but not many return to the bank. People who ask for them, put them to use as gifts on birthdays, and silver wedding anniversaries.

Newell Harding, silversmith of Boston, Mass., from 1822 to 1832, was the first U. S. silversmith to use power in the rolling of silver.

State Conference On Milk Prices

Producers And Distributors In Conference At Harrisburg With Control Commission

HARRISBURG, July 10.—(INS)—State milk control commission officials today opened conferences with Pennsylvania producers and distributors preparatory to fixing minimum prices which producers are to receive.

M. C. C. Chairman H. N. Cobb said approximately 75 producers and distributors in the commonwealth's 17 milk marketing areas would attend the meetings slated to end Friday.

He predicted a "serious" milk shortage in the fall because 1,000 cows were being slaughtered each month in the state.

"Out of these conferences will come definite orders from the milk control commission which will establish minimum prices which producers are to receive," Cobb explained. "These prices will be designed to prevent an abnormal flow of Pennsylvania milk to higher priced markets."

"The objective of the commission in all these hearings and conferences is to establish a producer price in Pennsylvania that will guarantee to Pennsylvania consumers an adequate supply of milk at a price which will permit the farmer to remain in business," he added.

Stabilization Effort
Cobb pointed out that despite M. C. C. efforts to stabilize supplies, huge quantities of Pennsylvania milk have flowed to adjacent states "where retail prices are now much higher than in Pennsylvania."

He explained that milk producers were faced with increased feed prices and that the "manpower" scarcity has run up the cost of farm labor to unprecedented heights.

"Milk distributors will not profit by any increase of price to the consumer, but a small percentage will go toward meeting advanced wage costs for plant labor and as commissions to milk truck drivers," Cobb said.

"Even with an increase of price to the producers, the likelihood is that there will be a serious shortage of milk in Pennsylvania next autumn due to the fact that under OPA regulations conditions have been such as to discourage farmers that they have been sending an average of 1,000 Pennsylvania milk cows to the butcher every month."

"The black market in meat, also a creation of OPA policies, is of course also partly responsible for this."

MILK PRODUCTION CAN BE MAINTAINED IN SUMMER

The usual decrease in milk flow in the summer months can be prevented if the causes are recognized and controlled.

Hot weather, short pastures, and flies are the common causes of decreased milk production. Plenty of shade and fresh water will help to combat the effects of hot weather. The use of a DDT spray on the walls and ceiling of the barn, together with livestock sprays on the cows will cut down the loss due to flies.

Rotation grazing and mowing of permanent pastures help to increase the feed supply. Use of second growth in meadows can help to fill in the gap caused by decreased growth of permanent pastures in hot weather. The use of dry hay, silage, and with the high producers, grain, will supply feed if the pastures are short.

Recent experiments show that milk production can be maintained during the summer months. The cows that are kept at a high production level during the summer will also produce more in the fall and early winter than will those that decline during this period.

Florida Taxing Trailer Homes As Real Estate

CHICAGO.—Automobile trailers used as permanent residences in Florida may now be taxed as real estate, according to a ruling of that state's attorney general.

The National Association of Assessing Officers is reporting to its members that trailers in Florida are now subject to one of three tax classifications.

If the trailer is primarily used attached to an automobile it must carry a motor vehicle license plate. If used primarily as living quarters, but still not attached to real estate through utilities connections, the trailer requires no vehicle license, but is subject to taxation as personal property.

Real estate taxes are levied by Florida where the trailers "are used as living quarters and are attached to the real estate in such a way as to become a part thereof."

Plan Terminal Pay In Bonds

Senate Committee Approves Bill Paying For Unused Furlough Time In Bonds

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—GI Joe and his seagoing counterpart were virtually assured of terminal leave pay today after the senate military committee approved a bill paying for unused furlough time in government bonds.

Sen. Johnson (D., Colo.), predicted that the bill, substitute for a house measure paying cash for terminal leave, would pass the senate easily. The house was expected to concur in the change.

Under the measure, enlisted men and officers would be paid for all unused leave time up to Sept. 1, 1946, whether they have been discharged or not.

Officers already relieved from active duty have been paid in cash, and under the proposal enlisted men have only to apply to the secretary of war, navy or treasury to get their money.

In Five-Year Bonds
Payment would be made in five-year, non-negotiable 2½ per cent bonds, issued in multiples of $25. Since the notes would be issued at a face value of $25 and bear 2½ per cent interest, each GI actually would receive $31.25 for his $25 at the end of five years.

In addition, under the plan, almost every service man or woman receiving terminal leave pay would get some cash, as any amount less than $25 is paid in cash. Thus, a man receiving $97 in terminal leave pay would get bonds worth $75 and $22 in cash.

The bill states that no more than 90 days cumulative leave may be built up, whereas under the officer terminal leave arrangement, as much as 120 days may be accumulated in four years.

Under the new plan each member of the armed forces will receive 30 days a year leave, and at the end of three years may take 90 days off if he has had no leave or furlough time during that period.

Exemptions Made
The bill specifically exempts payment for unused terminal leave at time of discharge after Sept. 1, and if a man is discharged after that date with accumulated time, he will receive no pay for time he failed to take off.

The new bill would apply equally to officers and enlisted men, and would in no way interfere with present mustering out pay, which amounts to $300 paid enlisted men and officers of company grade—captains and lieutenants.

Neither could the bill be considered a bonus. Johnson said he could see no possible effect of the bill one way or another on future bonus demands, although payment coming five years after discharge might resemble a bonus.

The proposed bill was substituted for the house cash bill after the administration and the bureau of budget pointed out the inflationary aspects of a cash payment at the present time.

Johnson estimated the payments would total two and three quarters billion dollars and would affect as many as 15 million men.

Since war, navy and coast guard records are not complete enough for computation of unused furlough time, affidavits as to time for which payment is due will be accepted for payment.

Johnson said there was no specific penalty proposed for filing of false affidavits, but that anyone so doing could be prosecuted for fraud.

Holiday Deaths Set At Only 512

The nation counted up 231 dead in traffic accidents during the four-day Fourth of July celebration, but this toll was far less than had been expected and even considerably below that for an ordinary four-day weekend period.

The National Safety Council had predicted 1,300 persons would die violently, but only 512 violent deaths were reported, including the traffic fatalities, 163 drownings and 118 deaths from miscellaneous violent causes.

New York had more than any other state—a total of 37, with 17 of the fatalities the result of traffic accidents. Road accidents killed 20 in Texas and Ohio, 16, Michigan had 20 drownings, California, 10, Delaware and Vermont had no violent deaths. Pennsylvania reported 19 deaths and New Jersey, 15.

Process Reclaims Small Coal Sizes

HARRISBURG, July 10.—An increasing number of anthracite coal collieries are installing systems for the reclaiming of the small sizes of coal as a result of the stream clearance program of the state sanitary water board, reports to Dr. Harry W. Weest, state health secretary and board chairman show.

Instead of diverting the small sizes of coal to the silt ponds which have been constructed to prevent stream pollution in compliance with the sanitary water board program, they are being reclaimed through different types of processes and are being sold for use by industry. Great amounts of that coal now being sold formerly went to the streams and rivers with the silt.

Ohio Bell Plans For Auto Phone Service

CLEVELAND.—The Ohio Bell Telephone Company has announced plans for "phone service on wheels" starting after Aug. 1.

The Bell Telephone laboratories mobile radio telephone service is the best of its kind in the world to connect with and become an actual part of a city's general telephone network.

Ohio Bell already has announced a tentative schedule of rates for the planned service based on combined radio-telephone hookups.

As initially planned, the program will permit a motorist driving within 25 miles of downtown Cleveland to pick up a telephone in his car and call his office or home. By contacting the long distance operator, he could get any place in the world.

It is also possible for anyone to call the motorist whose car is equipped with such a set.

Sees Subterfuge In Soviet Labor Plan For Japan

Chairman Acheson Of Allied Control Council Charges Move For Soviet Influence

By FRANK ROBERTSON
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
TOKYO, July 10.—(INS)—Chairman George Acheson Jr. of the Allied control council charged today that a proposed Soviet labor legislation program for Japan was a subterfuge for establishing Russian influence in the occupied nation.

The charge drew verbal attacks from both the Russian and British Commonwealth representatives to the council and forced the American to admit that his statement represented his personal opinion and not an official United States attitude.

Prepared Statement
In a prepared statement attacking the Russian proposals, Acheson, who is General MacArthur's deputy on the council, declared:

"The supreme commander has no intention of setting up any bayonet rule of military occupancy which would be the antithesis of the liberties we are giving the Japanese."

The American member who holds the rank of ambassador then asked whether industrial strikes were permitted in Russia, whether full freedom of labor unions was guaranteed, and whether working hours were fixed at eight daily.

Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, the Russian member, had recommended an eight-hour day for Japanese labor.

Acheson added: "The great danger to the labor movement in this country (Japan) is that it might fall under the influence of extreme self-seeking elements. Reimbursement is no friend of labor."

Answer Later
Derevyanko reserved the right to answer questions on internal Soviet labor policy at a later date but recommended that the American either study Russian labor laws or visit Russia for personal observation. The Russian general offered to give Acheson copies of Soviet labor laws and to welcome him personally to Russia.

Russian Lieut. Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko made his strongest statement to date against Acheson's repeated criticism of Soviet moves. Derevyanko declared:

"Not for the first time is the American member making use of the Allied council for propaganda of his own conception."

The British member, MacMahon Ball, sided with Derevyanko and termed the Soviet labor program "for the good of the people."

Ball declared that he "just could not find any signs of Communist propaganda" in the 22-point labor program submitted to the council by Derevyanko.

Color Detected
The British member added: "It is unfortunate that such a proposal, designed for the good of the people, should automatically be stigmatized as Communist propaganda."

In his statement, Acheson said the Russian proposals "have a color which we've seen before" and declared the labor movement in Japan is already developing favorably.

Acheson stated that the Russian recommendations have created an issue as to whether or not the council members intend to cooperate with General MacArthur's headquarters in "implementing the Potsdam declaration."

The American member pointed out that many of the Soviet proposals were already in practice. Acheson stated that the council's purpose was to establish Democratic principles for labor and let "the play of forces" decide the rules in accordance with those principles.

Lions Hear Dog Trainer For Blind Tell About Work

Dewey Satterfield Of Parma, O., Explains How "Seeing Eye" Dogs Are Trained

New Castle Lions club members heard an interesting address in connection with their meeting in The Castleton, Tuesday noon, when Dewey Satterfield, nationally known dog trainer, who trains dogs for the blind under the sponsorship of the Lions Sight Council of Cuyahoga county, Cleveland, O., told about his interesting work.

Mr. Satterfield, who entered into the work when urged to train a dog by the Cleveland Lions club, later became engrossed in this task, and has trained a number of these animals.

He had two dogs with him, one a Doberman and the other a German shepherd dog, which he put through their paces for the club. These dogs are guide dogs for two blind people in the Cleveland area, which were trained by Mr. Satterfield.

The dogs, which the Lions Sight Council loans to blind people, are purchased by them after a careful investigation into their background. Applicants are also carefully investigated, Mr. Satterfield states, and dogs are given by the council only to needy people to be used for gainful occupation.

Guests present at the luncheon meeting of the club included George W. Lusk, Jr., and W. W. Coates of this city.

Disciplinary Center Of Army Is Toured

By JAMES H. SMITH
(U. S. S. Staff Correspondent)

NEW CUMBERLAND, Pa., July 10.—The army's disciplinary center near New Cumberland is not a place where errant G.I.s can expect a "soft time".

Regulations are inflexible and discipline is strict, as befits a place where military prisoners must be confined.

There are no lavish appointments; only the necessities required by military law. Soldiers call it a "rugged" station.

Lose Rank and Pay

Military prisoners not only lose their rank but their pay as well. The whole setup, apparent to newsmen who made a carefully conducted tour of the 15-acre center, was not calculated to encourage "repeaters".

Col. Donald P. Foote, executive officer, arranged the tour yesterday in the wake of an unsuccessful "rebellion" Saturday night when some disgruntled prisoners fired 12 buildings and then tossed rocks at the fire fighters. More than 200 men have been sent to the center.

Newsmen were not permitted to interrogate the men so the prisoners contented themselves with lining up at windows in the barracks and shouting.

"Concentration camp," yelled one. "Tell them to put in the papers that we want to go home," shouted another.

Tell At Newsman

One prisoner yelled at the newsmen, obviously for the benefit of escorting officers: "Tell them the truth. Let them talk to the prisoners."

Another youth put a more practical twist to his shouted comment. "Tell them to feed us," was his contribution.

Officers, headed by Col. Lloyd Zuppann, commander of the disciplinary barracks, gave no hint that they heard the shouts.

The prisoners, many of them teen aged youths, were housed in two-story buildings formerly part of the army's induction station. Two high wire fences, one topped with barbs, surrounded the prison compound while towers were manned by civilian and soldier guards.

Despite all precautions, some of the men started the fires which leveled one barracks.

Zuppann emphasized that one prisoner had been injured in the melee but denied that any had escaped or had been killed.

Probe Under Way

Officially, the army had no explanation for the trouble until a three-member board of inquiry completed its investigation. Zuppann said none of the men had been mistreated.

He pointed out that guards received "excellent" cooperation from many of the prisoners during the fire and that a 100-man "honor company" had assisted in fighting the blazes.

Most of the inmates, whom the army believes can be rehabilitated, were sentenced by courts-martial for desertion and going AWOL. Zuppann added. He said more than 30 per cent of the prisoners had served overseas.

Since the camp was opened last October, a total of 436 men have been restored to army duty. Zuppann said. He explained that soldiers serving nine months in the army after leaving the barracks were eligible for honorable discharges.

Lt. Col. Wellington B. Seales of Baltimore, chief of the military prisoner branch of the second army, explained that some prisoners will be transferred to New Cumberland from similar camps at Jefferson Barracks, Md.; Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and Fort Knox, Ky.

Plan Stockpile Of Materials For Future In U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS)—United States plans for the accumulation of vast stockpile of strategic materials against any future emergency today neared fruition.

House and senate conferees have agreed on a measure which would permit a 10-year program for the accumulation of these supplies, primarily minerals. The bill now goes to President Truman for signature.

The program is to be administered by the war, navy and interior departments but the state, commerce, agriculture and treasury departments will furnish advice.

Instituted Prior to War

A similar program was instituted prior to the outbreak of war and continuing into the war, resulted in the expenditure of two million 500 thousand dollars for strategic materials in 53 countries.

However, the market was such, with nations bidding against each other, that proponents of the new program argue that it could have been carried out more cheaply if instituted earlier.

The old program envisaged shortages of many metals, rubber, fibers and other supplies. The war also demonstrated that there were many other items which might have been advantageously stockpiled as hostilities emphasized unanticipated needs.

Uranium in Picture

Observers believed it possible that uranium, essential to atomic energy, also might be brought into the new 10-year program. It was recalled that the uranium for the atomic bomb was imported from Canada, which has greater supplies of high quality ore than the United States.

However, almost any defense plans for the United States bank on access to Canadian supplies in any conceivable emergency.

According to experts, the factors which drove the U. S. abroad for essential war materials were made more emphatic by the war. In meeting military needs, great imports were made into American resources which hitherto had been popularly regarded as inexhaustible. Iron ore was one of these. So was petroleum.

Among the minerals in which stockpiling will take place are bauxite, for aluminum; copper; platinum; mercury and tin. Principal among the other items are vegetable oils.

The pending measure merely provides authorization for the stockpiling operation. Annual appropriations must be made to carry it out. Costs are estimated at something under 500 million dollars early.

Seeking Rooms For 55,000 Persons In Cleveland Area

CLEVELAND, July 10.—(INS)—The Watchtower Bible and Tract society—better known as Jehovah's Witnesses—was canvassing greater Cleveland today for approximately 55,000 rooms to accommodate the sect's ministers when they hold their international meeting August 4 to 11.

Every house within a 35-mile radius was being visited by 500 society members in an effort to arrange lodgings for the delegates who will converge on Cleveland from every part of the United States and nearly every country in the world.

Charles R. Hessler, officially designated as the "convention servant," said that so far 28,159 reservations have been secured and that he was hopeful the immense quota would be filled by the time of the meeting date.

Prospects Better For Sale Of Cuban Sugar To U. S.

HAVANA, July 10.—(INS)—The prospects for the sale of Cuba's 1946 and 1947 sugar crops to the United States were enhanced today with the scheduling of a meeting of the National Mill Owners association for tomorrow to consider the American offer.

The American proposal was made last night by Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, head of a delegation which has been negotiating with the Cubans. It is understood to involve American asurance that Cuba will be provided with essential goods through this year.

The Mill Owners association will hear a report from its executive committee at tomorrow's meeting.

Reynolds-Summers Store Employees In Annual Picnic

Employees of Reynolds & Summers Co. store, and their families, closed shop Tuesday afternoon and enjoyed a picnic at Stoughton's Beach.

The afternoon's play was started with a swim after which they played baseball and various other games. With a delightful picnic supper at six, the evening was spent in roller skating and dancing. About 60 persons attended, with each receiving his share of sunburn and stiff muscles," Ben Prosser, an official of the store, reported.

PITTSBURGH, July 10.—(INS)—Thomas Meyers, 11, of Paxon township, was recovering today in a Pittsburgh hospital from a bullet wound in the knee suffered when he was struck by a stray bullet.

The youth, who police said had been swimming, was struck by a bullet fired by one of several ground-hog hunters in the Bull Creek region.

Good Taste

By Francine Markel
DOES WOMAN RISE TO MEET ANOTHER WOMAN?

"I am always uncertain as to when I should rise during introductions," says Thuid Anne. "I would like to do the proper thing without appearing awkward. Please tell me when to stand and when to remain seated."

Answer: Rise without fail when you are meeting or greeting your hostess or an elderly woman. These are "musts." Although it is not obligatory to do so, it is a courteous gesture for a young woman to rise to meet her host, especially if he is considerably older.

A good general rule to follow is—when in doubt, stand up, especially when doing so lessens awkwardness or gives the impression of spontaneous pleasure at the meeting. For instance a very good friend or a fond sister of your hostess suddenly comes over and is introduced to you. You would naturally rise to shake hands with her even though she were a contemporary.

There is no obligation to rise when such introductions are casual or when there is a group involved; but in a small gathering of two or three, it is a good idea. It shows enthusiasm and pleasure at the meeting if we stand. Never remain awkwardly seated when others are standing, simply because you heard that "women do not rise."

Women do not rise in restaurants to accept introductions, unless the table visitor is an elderly or distinguished woman. A hostess must rise to greet her guests, both men and woman, unless she is seated at a tea table or luncheon table when rising would be awkward. She may then extend her hand across the table to greet incoming guests.

A woman should rise to accept an introduction to a high-ranking clergyman, a reigning monarch and the President of the United States.

Present your problems to Miss Markel who will promptly mail personal replies to questions from readers including stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

Williams Hitting Star As Americans Win Classic

All-Star Fans Get Thrill Of Seeing Homers

Williams Drives In Seven Runs As Americans Win Tuesday 12-0

NATIONAL LEAGUE GETTING "RAZZED"

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)
BOSTON, July 10.—In the wake (sic) of the display of amiable nonsense that passed for a major league all-star ball game was the persistent report today that the abused and discomfited National League will presently decide—upon regaining its sanity—it is tired of taking a swift, unerring kick in the britches.

The next step, they say, will be a short one—to the only constructive action open to the victim in the circumstances.

It will, the rumorists fully believe, get quietly and hurriedly out of what may remain of the all-star series before it loses its chemise.

Williams Hero

That, by the way, was about all the National had left yesterday after "Terrible Ted" Williams and his American League cast of character-wreckers had foisted upon the rival league the slender and ignominious of a 12-0 defeat. Of ego, when the end came, there was little. Of repute, none.

Considering the fact that neither league makes so much as a pale dime from the receipts, which yesterday hit a record $111,338.75 at Fenway Park, it isn't difficult to imagine the plaintive National leaguers wanting to get out of the promotion while they still have their health.

Nationals Miffed

Naturally baseball will go a little slow in doing anything that might have unpleasant repercussions. Just as the National league will be at particular pains not to assume sole responsibility for whatever might be done. Of course, if they wished, they could rationalize yesterday's hilarity by blaming it on the said Williams.

As baseball's acknowledged hitter of the generation, he had himself such a day as comes in a moment of crisis to few men in a life-time—two home runs, two singles, a pass, a 1,000 on the day, four runs scored, 10 total bases and seven of the American's 12 runs either directly or indirectly accounted for.

Clouts Blobber Ball

His 420-foot homer off Kirby Higbe into the dead-center field seats was, in itself, a series record—in that not until yesterday was Ruth's most famous home run (at Wrigley Field, Chicago) reproduced in all star play.

Williams' second homer was another record. It was hit off Rip Sewell's "Blobber" pitch and nobody, in or out of all-star baseball, had been known to do that before. Most certainly, the whole situation was unusual. But that's no comfort to a league which, finding itself consistently outclassed, is weary with being horsed around.

Zehfuss Hurls Pulaski To Win

Zehfuss of Pulaski turned in a three-hitter last night as the Pulaski club downed the New Bedford team, 9-1, in a North County loop affair.

While Zehfuss had the Bedfords swinging helplessly, Pulaski raked Kupiec for 11 blows.

Sports Fallacies

By MARGERY MILLER
(Central Press Sports Writer)

Training camps for boxers are not established solely for the purpose of getting fighters into condition.

The ballyhoo value of such camps is tremendous as can be seen when one considers that even such a playboy as Max Baer always established elaborate camps.

Baer was so casual about training that he fooled his own manager. When sent out to do roadwork Max trotted around a bend in the road, lay down under a tree, and napped. Before returning to camp he tossed a bucket of water over his head so that it would appear he was dripping with perspiration.

Tony Galento, notoriously fond of barrooms and smoky gymnasiums, pitched training camps after he hit the top. The tip off was that Tony brought his beer with him.

Johnny Uram Takes New Coaching Post At Adams Township

Former New Castle High All-Around Athlete Will Teach And Coach

John Uram of 125 Atlantic avenue, probably one of the greatest all-around athletes in the history of New Castle high school, has accepted the appointment to the position of backfield coach and floor mentor at Adams township high, Sidman, Pa., a position vacated when his brother, Nick, became assistant football coach at Allegheny high.

In 1933, while playing varsity football at New Castle high, John was All-State half and was on the all section team. He was an all-around athlete, playing basketball and running the dashes in track as well as playing football.

With Teach and Coach

After leaving high school, Uram went to Slippery Rock State Teachers College and from there to Salem College, Salem, W. Va. At Salem he made the All-State football team in 1936. John did summer work at Grove City College last year, where he qualified in the commercial field. This summer he is at Penn State.

In 1939 he became head coach at South Fork high school, South Fork, Pa., just four miles from his new position. At Adams high, John Uram will teach health and physical education along with coaching.

Bob Fee Hurls No-Hit Game

Ryantown Ace Whitewashes Lawrence Indies 3 To 0, Hits Double

Young Bob Fee, 24, late of the service, entered the City Baseball Hall of Fame last night by pitching and batting the sensational Ryantown team to a 3 to 0 startling defeat of the famous Lawrence Indies, the first half champions, on a no-hitter.

Fee was complete master of the champions in every inning, as he fanned six batters and walked none. Despite two errors by his mates, the Indies failed to score.

D. Robinson Homers

Pat Majocha on the hill for the Indies pitched a four-hitter but was unfortunate enough to run into the sensational hurling of young Fee. It was the second win for the Ryantown team managed by Bob Smiley in the second-half without a defeat. It was the second straight defeat handed the Indies in the second-half race.

Fee besides pitching marvelous ball, helped to win his own game, hitting a double, and his fellow team-mate, D. Robinson slammed a "Ted" Williams to be the feature hit.

Extra-base knocks were made by Kelley, and Buckingham. Both teams played errorless ball in the field. It was the second win for the Moose in the second-half race without a defeat.

West Pittsburgh could not hit Cook hard, he fanned three and walked two, but was master of the situation at all times. Heavy hitting was done by Rubels, Memo and Appecelli.

Doyle Decisions Russell Baxter

Cleveland Battler Gets Nod At End Of Youngstown Bout Tuesday

(Special to The News)
YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 10.—Russell Baxter, of New Castle, a coming middleweight contender, ran into a tough Irish Mickey Doyle, of Cleveland, here at a local park last night and lost the decision, over the 10-round route, in the semi-final window.

Baxter had Doyle bleeding over the eye the biggest part of the bout and did the stiffest punching, but Doyle had Baxter in trouble a few times with a hard right hand and left hook backed up with aggressiveness. Baxter was not at his best last night, being too anxious for a knockout.

Flynn Wins Decision
Big Jack Flynn, of Rochester, N. Y., 211½ pounds, won a unanimous decision over Willie Barrows, a cousin of Joe Louis, in the 10-round main bout. Barrows weighed 183½. Flynn, a recent army discharge, was off his timing, but had Barrows bleeding from a cut eye and in bad circumstances several times.

In the six-rounder Shamus McCray, of Cleveland, colored, was given the decision over Arbie Bowie, colored, of Allegheny, in a scrap in which both boys mixed it freely.

Tommy Brocken, of Warren, O., stopped Charlie Janiga, of Barberian, O., by the TKO route in the second round of a four-rounder, while Ted Delarado, of Wellsville, O., defeated Jimmy Wilson, of Pittsburgh, colored, in the opener.

Quite a number from New Castle witnessed the bouts making up a crowd of over 5,000 fans.

Legion Defeats Sons Of Italy

Fred Shaffer pitched a steady four-hitter last night at Washington field as the American Legion bested the Sons of Italy in a city baseball loop game 9 to 4, getting five runs in the big fifth inning off Orelli and Janacene.

Fazzone was the feature hitter with a homer and single, while Scungio slammed a triple for the losers. Gibson led the Legion at bat with two singles.

Moguls To Confer

BOSTON, July 10.—(INS)—The "Big Three" of baseball today had invitations from Robert Murphy to confer on the problems concerning the baseball guild and the moguls.

Murphy, who organized the baseball guild, sent telegrams to Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler, President Ford Frick of the National league, and President Will Harridge of the American league. He invited them to sit down to discuss the problems of the union and baseball with him while everybody was in Boston for the all-star game yesterday.

Conn Is Ranked Sixth On List Of Heavyweights

N. B. A. Lists No. One Logical Contender For Title
Held By Joe Louis

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 10.—(INS)—The National Boxing association in its new quarterly ratings ranks Billy Conn no better than sixth among the heavyweights.

Moreover, the N. B. A. lists such ordinary battlers as Tami Mauriello, New York; Jersey Joe Walcott, Elmer Ray, Florida; Lee Oma,
Michigan; and Bruce Woodcock, ahead of the Pittsburgher Joe Louis knocked out in eight rounds.

The N. B. A. listed no one as a "logical contender" for Louis' title and, taking a two-handed slap at Promoter Mike Jacobs, deplored the marked scarcity of boxing talent and called for a new deal "which would take boxing out of the cash register class and restore it to competitive sport."

Many Recognized
Ezzard Charles, Ohio, and Billy
Fox, Pennsylvania, were listed as logical contenders for Gus Lesnevich's light heavyweight title.

Rocky Graziano, New York;
Charles Butler, Pennsylvania; and Jake LaMotta, New York, were named contenders for Tony Zale's middleweight crown.

Ray Robinson, New York, was named as contender for Marty Servo's welterweight diadem.

The N. B. A., which recognizes the Williams New Jersey, as champion, while New York state recognizes Bob Montgomery, urged a match between these two to clean up the lightweight muddle.

Pymatuning Lures Anglers For Bass, Wall-Eyed Pike

ANDOVER, July 10.—Opening of the season for wall-eyed pike and black bass has resulted in the luring of record crowds of northeastern
Ohio anglers to Pymatuning Lake.
Campers are crowding all available facilities along the Ohio shore of the lake and boat livers report
all rentable crafts in service.

Last year, wall-eyes weighing anywhere from four pounds up to 12 and 13 pounds were taken from Pymatuning—which is regarded as a fine lake for this species.

As long as they're in a boat, sportsmen may fish anywhere in the lake, but they are required to land on the shore from which they started unless they have purchased a non-resident license.

Fishing from the shore must be done from the state in which the individual's license was issued.

Cleveland Defeats Harrisburg, 11 To 6

HARRISBURG, July 10.—(INS)—
Lou Boudreau's Cleveland Indians defeated the Harrisburg Senators of the Interstate League, 11 to 6, last night before more than 3500 spectators.

Both teams banged out 12 hits including home runs by Jack Conway and Sherman Lollar of the Indians and John Blatnik of the Senators.

Joe Krakauskas, Don Black and Les Weber hurled for the Indians
while Jim Coleman, Rudy Oleson and Max Patkin pitched for the Harrisburg club.

Young Will Return To Illinois Team

CHICAGO, July 10.—(INS)—University of Illinois football fans were cheered Tuesday by news that Buddy Young, fleet negro halfback who scored 13 touchdowns as a freshman for the Illini in 1944, will return next fall.

Young returned home to Chicago
Monday after service in the Navy, where he scored 15 touchdowns for the undefeated Fleet City Navy eleven on the Pacific coast last fall.

Smokey Robinson Is TKO Winner

OIL CITY, Pa., July 10.—(INS)—
Frank (Smokey) Robinson, Oil City welterweight, today held a technical knockout victory over Johnny Chatman, also of Buffalo.

Robinson's victory came in two minutes of the third round of their scheduled eight round fight last night in Oil City. He had Chatman on the floor twice in the second round.

Production of pie cherries is increasing each year in Pennsylvania.
In 1945 the state ranked 9th in production and 4th in value of sour cherries, the State Department of Agriculture reports.

National Guard Men To Receive Army Pay Rates

Press Enacts Law Giving Guard Soldiers Identical Pay Of Regular Army

ARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's new soldiers of the new National Guard will be better-paid than ever before for their spare-time military activity, as a consequence of Congress' enactment of new pay schedules for the armed forces, Guard Headquarters announced today.

The same daily pay rates that apply to the regular services will hold good for officers and men of corresponding ranks or grades in the National Guard units as soon as they have attained Federal recognition. That comes when an organization has enrolled set percentages of its officer and enlisted strength. The Guard now is driving toward an enlistment goal of nearly 27,000 officers and men in first-priority units, and an ultimate strength of nearly 40,000.

Use Army Basis

Guard pay will be computed on the basis of one-thirtieth of the regular army pay for each authorized drill attended. Whereas pay-day comes once a month for the regular forces, the Guardsmen will receive their pay, every three months.

In addition to the so-called "drill pay" each Guardsman will receive a half-month's pay—plus allowances and the added percentage granted for length of service—for the annual 15 days' field training. Enlisted men will draw an additional 50 cents a day from the states during the Guard's summer encampments.

Up Private Pay

Under the new schedules, the basic private who received $2 a day until mid-1941 will get $2.50 for each drill, and $45 for his tour of field duty. The drill and field training pay, respectively, for the higher grades will be:

Pvt. .... $2.66 and $47.50
Cpl. and T-5 .... $3.00 and $52.50
Sgt. and T-4 .... $3.33 and $57.50
S-Sgt. and T-3 .... $3.83 and $65.00
T-Sgt. .... $4.50 and $75.00
M-Sgt.—1st Sgt. .... $5.50 and $90.00

Personnel who are injured or contract disease in line of duty while on the way to or from maneuvers or other military exercises are entitled to hospitalization and medical and surgical care at government expense. In addition, during hospitalization, they are entitled to pay and allowances for an aggregate of six months after termination of the exercise.

Report Hughes Is Gaining Ground

Injured Flyer Takes First Solid Food Since Plane Crash Sunday Night

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(INS)—Howard Hughes today was reported gaining ground in his fight for life after taking the first solid food since his plane crash Sunday night.

A bulletin from his attending physician, Dr. Verne R. Mason, said that Hughes had eaten lamb chops, graham crackers, peaches and drank some milk.

Hughes slept four hours last night, the longest sleep he has had since the crash.

Dr. Mason's bulletin, describing the fabulous plane builder and movie producer as still in critical condition, said his left lung still was not functioning, carrying a grave threat of pneumonia.

In an earlier bulletin Dr. Mason revealed that Hughes was being given penicillin every three hours and his position changed from side to side as frequently as possible to ward off the pneumonia threat, now regarded as his most immediate danger.

Dr. Mason said severe shock from which Hughes suffered the first 24 hours had been controlled by three blood transfusions.

In general, it was said Hughes was resting more easily than at any time since he was dragged from his flaming photo reconnaissance plane. Examination disclosed that Hughes suffered no skull fracture as had been feared.

Prior to eating the lamb chops, Hughes had been fed only liquids.

A second armed guard was posted outside his room at Good Samaritan Hospital as Dr. Mason reiterated that Hughes must not attempt a repeat performance of Monday's business conference with his associates.

Jane Russell, star of Hughes' controversial motion picture "The Outlaw," appeared at the hospital yesterday but was refused admittance to his room. She said:

"I'm so glad he's improved and, of course, I didn't really expect to be allowed to see him. I'll keep informed of his condition by telephone."
